MEDCOMMEN

DEOGIL

PROLOGUE,

Written by a Person of Quality.

WITS, like Physicians, never can agree, When of a different Society;
And Rabel's Drops were never more cry'd down By all the Learned Doctors of the Town, Than a new Play, whose Author is unknown: Nor can those Doctors with more Malice sue (And powerful Purses) the dissenting Few, Than those with an insulting Pride, do rail At all who are not of their own Cabal.

If a Young Poet bit your Humour right, You judge him then out of Revenge and Spite; So among ft Men there are ridiculous Elves, Who Monkeys hate for being too like themselves: So that the Reason of the Grand Debate, Why Wit so oft is damn'd, when good Plays Is, that you censure as you love or hate. Thus, like a learned Conclave, Poets fit, Catholick Judges both of Sense and Wit, And damn or fave, as they themselves think fit. Yet those who to others Faults are so severe, Are not so perfect, but themselves may err. Some write correct indeed; but then the whole (Bating their own dull Stuff i'th' Play) is stole: As Bees do suck from Flowers their Hony-Dew, So they rob others, striving to please you.

Some write their Characters genteel and fine, But then they do so toil for every Line, That what to you does easy seem, and plain, Is the hard Issue of their labouring Brain. And some the Effects of all their Pains we see,
Is but to mimick good Extempore.
Others by long Converse about the Town,
Have Wit enough to write a leud Lampoon,
But their chief Skill lies in a Baudy Song.
In short, the only Wit that's now in Fashion,
Is but the Gleanings of good Conversation.
As for the Author of this coming Play,
I ask d him what he thought sit I should say,
In thanks for your good Company to day:
He call'd me Fool, and said it was well known,
You came not here for our Sakes, but your own.
New Plays are stuff'd with Wits, and with Debauches,
That croud and sweat like Cits in May-day Coaches.

EPILOGUE.

THE banish'd Cavaliers! A Roving Blade! A popish Carnival! A Masquerade! The Devil's in't if this will please the Nation, In these our blossed Times of Reformation, When Conventicling is so much in Fashion. And yet -That mutinous Tribe les Factions do beget. Than your continual differing in Wit; Your Judgments's (as your Passions) a Disease: Nor Muse, nor Miss, your Appetite can please: You're grown as nice as queasy Consciences, Whose each Convulsion, when the Spirit moves, Damns every thing that Maggot disapproves. With canting Rule you would the Stage refine, And to dull Method all our Sense confine. With th' Insolence of Common-wealth's you rule. Where each gay Fop, and politick brave Fool On Monarch Wit impose without controul.

As for the last who seldom sees a Play,
Unless it be the old Black-Friers way,
Shaking his empty Noddle o'er Bamboo,
He crys—Good Faith, these Plays will never do,
—Ah, Sir, in my young Days, what losty Wit,
What high-strain'd Scenes of Fighting there were writ:
These are slight airy Toys. But tell me, pray,
What has the House of Commons done to day?
Then shews his Politicks, to let you see
Of State Affairs he'll judge as notably,
As he can do of Wit and Poetry.
The younger Sparks, who hither do resort,

Pox o' your gentle Things, give us more Sport;

—Damn me, I'm sure 'twill never please the Court.

Such Fops are never pleas'd, unless the Play

Be stuff'd with Fools, as brisk and dull as they:

Such might the half Crown spare, and in a Glass

At home behold a more accomplish'd Ass,

Where they may set their Cravats, Wigs and Faces,

And practise as their Bussonry Grimaces;

See how this—Hust becomes—this Dammy—stare—

Which they at home may act, because they dare,

But—must with prudent Caution do elsewhere.

Oh that our Nokes, or Tony Lee cou'd show

A Fop but half so much to the Life as you.

ACT I. SCENE I.

A Chamber.

Enter Florinda and Hellena.

Florinda.

HAT an impertinent Thing is a young Girl bred in a Nunnery! How full of Questions! Prithee no more Hellena; I have told thee more than thou understand it already.

Hell. The more's my Grief; I wou'd fain know as much as you, which makes me so inquisitive; nor is't enough to know you're a Lover, unless you tell me too, who 'tis you sigh for.

A 4

Flor.

Flor. When you are a Lover, I'll think you fit for a Secret of that Nature.

Hell. 'Tis true, I was never a Lover yet—but I begin to have a shreud Guess, what 'tis to be so, and fansy it very pretty to sigh, and sing, and blush and wish, and dream and wish, and long and wish to see the Man; and when I do, look pale and tremble; just as you did when my Brother brought home the fine English Colonel to see you—what do you call him? Don Belvile.

Flor. Fie Hellena.

Hell. That Blush betrays you—I am sure 'tis so—or is it Don-Antonio the Vice-Roy's Son?—Or perhaps the rich old Don Vincentio, whom my Father designs for your Husband?—Why do you blush again?

Flor. With Indignation; and how near soever my Father thinks I am to marrying that hated Object, I shall let him see I understand better what's due to my Beauty, Birth and Fortune, and more to my Soul, than to obey those unjust Commands.

Hell. Now hang me, if I don't love thee for that dear Disobedience. I love Mischief strangely, as most of our Sex do, who are come to love nothing else——But tell me, dear Florinda, don't you love that fine Anglese?——for I vow next to loving him myself, 'twill please me most that you do so, for he is so gay and so handsome.

Flor. Hellena, a Maid design'd for a Nun ought not to be so curious in a Discourse of Love.

Hell. And dost thou think that ever I'll be a Nun? Or at least till I'm so old, I'm fit for nothing else. Faith no, Sister; and that which makes me long to know whether you love Belvile, is, because I hope he has some mad Companion or other, that will spoil my Devotion; nay, I'm resolv'd to provide my self this Carnival, if there be e'er a handsome Fellow of my Humour above Ground, tho' I ask first.

Flor. Prithee be not fo wild.

Hell. Now you have provided yourself with a Man, you take no Care for poor me—Prithee tell me, what dost dost thou see about me that is unsit for Love—have not I a world of Youth? A Humour gay? A Beauty passable? A Vigour desirable? Well shap'd? Clean limb'd? Sweet breath'd? And Sense enough to know how all these ought to be employ'd to the best Advantage? Yes, I do and will. Therefore lay aside your Hopes of my Fortune, by my being a Devotee, and tell me how you came acquainted with this Belvile; for I perceive you knew him before he came to Naples.

Flor. Yes, I knew him at the Siege of Pampelona, he was then a Colonel of French Horse, who when the Town was ransack'd, nobly treated my Brother and myself, preferving us from all Insolencies; and I must own, (besides great Obligations) I have I know not what, that pleads kindly for him about my Heart, and will suffer no other to enter-But see my Brother.

Enter Don Pedro, Stephano, with a Masquing Habit, and Callis.

Pedro. Good morrow, Sister, Pray when saw you your Lover Don Vincentio?

Flor. I know not, Sir—Callis, when was he here? for I confider it so little, I know not when it was.

Flor. A Passion for me! 'Tis more than e'er I saw, or had a desire should be known—I hate Vincentio, and I would not have a Man so dear to me as my Brother sollow the ill Customs of our Country, and make a Slave of his Sister—And Sir, my Father's Will, I'm sure, you may divert.

Pedro. I know not how dear I am to you, but I wish only to be rank'd in your Esteem, equal with the English Colonel Belvile——Why do you frown and blush? Is there any Guilt belongs to the Name of that Cavalier?

Flor. I'll not deny I value Belvile: When I was expos'd to fuch Dangers as the licens'd Lust of common Soldiers threatned, when Rage and Conquest slew thro' the City—then Belvile, this Criminal for my sake, threw himfelf into all Dangers to fave my Honour, and will you not allow him my Efteem?

Pedro. Yes, pay him what you will in Honourbut you must consider Don Vincentio's Fortune, and the fointure he'll make you.

Flor. Let him confider my Youth, Beauty and Fortune; which ought not to be thrown away on his Age and lointure.

Pedro. 'Tis true, he's not so young and fine a Gentleman as that Belvile-but what Jewels will that Cavalier present you with? Those of his Eyes and Heart?

Hell. And are not those better than any Don Vincentie has brought from the Indies?

Pedro. Why how now! Has your Nunnery-breeding taught you to understand the Value of Hearts and Eyes?

Hell. Better than to believe Vincentio deserves Value from any Woman-He may perhaps increase her Bags, but not her Family.

Pedro. This is fine-Go up to your Devotion, you are not defign'd for the Conversation of Lovers.

Hell. Nor Saints yet awhile I hope. Is't not enough you make a Nun of me, but you must east my Sister away to, exposing her to a worse Confinement than a religious Life?

Pedro. The Girl's mad-Is it a Confinement to be earry'd into the Country, to an ancient Villa belonging to the Family of the Vincentio's these five hundred Years, and have no other Prospect than that pleasing one of seeing all her own that meets her Eyes—a fine Air, large Fields and Gardens, where she may walk and gather Flowers?

Hell. When? By Moon-Light? For I'm fure she dares not encounter with the Heat of the Sun; that were a Task only for Don Vincentio and his Indian Breeding, who loves it in the Dog-days——And if these be her daily Divertisements, what are those of the Night? to lie in a wide Moth-eaten Bed-Chamber with Furniture in Fashion in the Reign of King Sancho the First; the Bed that which his Forefathers liv'd and dy'd in.

Pedro.

Pedro. Very well.

Hell. This Apartment (new furbish'd and sitted out for the young Wise) he (out of Freedom) makes his Dressingroom; and being a srugal and a jealous Coxcomb, instead of a Valet to uncase his seeble Carcase, he desires you to do that Office——Signs of Favour, I'll assure you, and such as you must not hope for, unless your Woman be out of the way.

Pedro. Have you done yet?

Hell. That Honour being past, the Giant stretches it self, yawns and sighs a Belch or two as loud as a Musket, throws himself into Bed, and expects you in his soul Sheets, and ere you can get your self undrest, calls you with a Snore or two—And are not these sime Blessings to a young Lady?

Pedro. Have you done yet?

Hell. And this Man you must kiss, nay, you must kiss none but him too—and nuzzle thro' his Beard to find his Lips—and this you must submit to for threescore Years, and all for a Jointure.

Pedro. For all your Character of Don Vincentio, she is as like to marry him as she was before.

Hell. Marry Don Vincentio! Hang me, such a Wedlock would be worse than Adultery with another Man: I had rather see her in the Hostel de Dieu, to waste her Youth there in Vows, and be a Handmaid to Lazers and Cripples, than to lose it in such a Marriage.

Pedro. You have confider'd, Sifter, that Belvile has no Fortune to bring you to, is banish'd his Country, despis'd at home, and pity'd abroad.

Hell. What then? The Vice-Roy's Son is better than that Old Sir Fifty. Don Vincentio! Don Indian! He thinks he's trading to Gambo still, and wou'd barter himself (that Bell and Bauble) for your Youth and Fortune.

Pedro. Callis, take her hence, and lock her up all this Carnival, and at Lent she shall begin her everlaiting Penance in a Monastery.

Hell. I care not, I had rather be a Nun, than be oblig'd to marry as you wou'd have me, if I were design'd for't.

Pedro. Do not fear the Bleffing of that Choice-you shall be a Nun.

Hell. Shall I so? You may chance to be mistaken in my way of Devotion——A Nun! Yes, I am like to make a fine Nun! I have an excellent Humour for a Grate: No, I'll have a Saint of my own to pray to shortly, if I like any that dares venture on me.

Pedro. Callis, make it your Business to watch this wild Cat. As for you Florinda, I've only try'd you all this while, and urg'd my Father's Will; but mine is, that you would love Antonio, he is brave and young, and all that can complete the Happiness of a gallant Maid——This Absence of my Father will give us Opportunity to free you from Vincentio, by marrying here, which you must do Tomorrow.

Flor. To-morrow!

Pedro. To-morrow, or 'twill be too late—'tis not my Friendship to Antonio, which makes me urge this, but Love to thee, and Hatred to Vincentio——therefore resolve upon't To-morrow.

Flor. Sir, I shall strive to do as shall become your Sifter.

Pedro. I'll both believe and trust you-Adieu.

[Ex. Ped. and Steph.

Hell. As becomes his Sister!——That is, to be as refolved your way, as he his—— [Hell. goes to Callis.

Flor. I ne'er till now perceiv'd my Ruin near,

I've no Defence against Antonio's Love, For he has all the Advantages of Nature,

The moving Arguments of Youth and Fortune.

Hell. But hark you, Callis, you will not be fo cruel to lock me up indeed: Will you?

Call. I must obey the Commands I hate-besides, do you confider what a Life you are going to lead?

Hell. Yes, Callis, that of a Nun: And till then I'll be indebted a World of Prayers to you, if you let me now fee, what I never did, the Divertisements of a Carnival.

Call. What, go in Masquerade? 'Twill be a fine farewel to the World I take it—pray what wou'd you do there?

Flor. Callis, will you give us leave to go?

Call. I have a youthful Itch of going my felf. [Afide.—Madam, if I thought your Brother might not know it, and I might wait on you, for by my Troth I'll not trust young Girls alone.

Flor. Thou fee'ft my Brother's gone already, and thou shalt attend and watch us.

Enter Stephano.

Steph. Madam, the Habits are come, and your Coufin

Valeria is dreft, and stays for you.

Flor. 'Tis well——I'll write a Note, and if I chance to see Belvile, and want an opportunity to speak to him, that shall let him know what I've resolv'd in favour of him.

Hell. Come let's in and drefs us.

[Exeunt.

SCENE II. A long Street.

Enter Belvile melancholy, Blunt and Frederick.

Fred. Why, what the Devil ails the Colonel, in a time when all the World is gay, to look like mere Lent thus? Hadit thou been long enough in Naples to have been in love, I should have sworn some such Judgment had befallen thee.

Belv. No, I have made no new Amours fince I came to Naples.

Fred. You have left none behind you in Paris.

Belv. Neither.

Fred. I can't divine the Cause then; unless the old Cause, the want of Money.

Blunt. And another old Cause, the want of a Wench.

Wou'd not that revive you?

Belv.

Belv. Your'e mistaken, Ned.

Bhunt. Nay, 'Sheartlikins, then thou art past Cure.

Fred. I have found it out; thou hast renew'd thy Acquaintance with the Lady that cost thee so many Sighs at the Siege of Pampelona—Pox on't, what d'ye call her—her Brother's a noble Spaniard—Nephew to the dead General—Florinda—ay, Florinda—And will nothing serve thy turn but that damn'd virtuous Woman, whom on my Conscience thou lov'st in spite too, because thou see'st little or no possibility of gaining her?

Belo. Thou art mistaken, I have Interest enough in that lovely Virgin's Heart, to make me proud and vain, were it not abated by the Severity of a Brother, who perceiving my Happiness—

Fred. Has civilly forbid thee the House?

Belv. 'Tis fo, to make way for a powerful Rival, the Vice-Roy's Son, who has the Advantage of me, in being a Man of Fortune, a Spaniard, and her Brother's Friend; which gives him Liberty to make his Court, whilft I have Recourse only to Letters, and distant Looks from her Window, which are as soft and kind as those which Heav'n sends down on Penitents.

Blunt. Hey day! 'Sheartlikins, Simile! by this Light, the Man is quite spoil'd——Frederick, what the Devil are we made of, that we cannot be thus concern'd for a Wench?——'Sheartlikins, our Cupids are like the Cooks of the Camp, they can roast or boil a Woman, but they have none of the fine Tricks to set em off, no Hogoes to make the Sauce pleasant, and the Stomach sharp.

Fred. I dare swear I have had a hundred as young, kind and handsome as this Florinda; and Dogs eat me if they were not as troublesome to me i'th' Morning as they were welcome o'er Night.

Blunt. And yet, I warrant, he would not touch another Woman, if he might have her for nothing.

Belv. That's thy Joy, a cheap Whore.

Blunt. Why, 'Sheartlikens, I love a frank Soul—
When did you ever hear of an honest Woman that took a Man's Money? I warrant 'em good ones—
But

Gen-

Gentlemen, you may be free, you have been kept so poor with Parliaments and Protectors, that the little Stock you have is not worth preserving—but I thank my Stars, I had more Grace than to forfeit my Estate by Cavaliering.

Belv. Methinks only following the Court should be fufficient to entitle 'em to that.

Blunt. 'Sheartlikins, they know I follow it to do it no good, unless they pick a Hole in my Coat for lending you Money now and then; which is a greater Crime to my Conscience, Gentlemen, than to the Commonwealth.

Enter Willmore.

Will. Ha! dear Belvile! noble Colonel!

Belv. Willmore! welcome ashore, my dear Rover!—what happy Wind blew us this good Fortune?

Will. Let me falute you my dear Fred. and then command me-How is't honest Lad?

Fred. Faith, Sir, the old Compliment, infinitly the better to fee my dear mad Willmore again——Prithee why cam'ft thou ashore? and where's the Prince?

Will. He's well, and reigns still Lord of the watery Element——I must aboard again within a Day or two, and my Business ashore was only to enjoy myself a little this Carnival.

Belv. Pray know our new Friend, Sir, he's but bashful, a raw Traveller, but honest, stout, and one of us.

[Embraces Blunt.

Will. That you esteem him, gives him an Interest here.

Blunt. Your Servant, Sir.

Will. But well——Faith I'm glad to meet you again in a warm Climate, where the kind Sun has its God-like Power still over the Wine and Women—Love and Mirth are my Business in Naples; and if I mistake not the Place, here's an excellent Market for Chapmen of my Humour.

Belv. See here be those kind Merchants of Love you look for.

Enter several Men in masquing Habits, some playing on Musick, others dancing aster; Women drest like Curtexans, with Papers pinn'd to their Breasts, and Baskets of Flowers in their Hands. Blunt. 'Sheartlikins, what have we here?

Fred. Now the Game begins.

Will. Fine pretty Creatures! May a Stranger have leave to look and love? ——What's here—Roses for every Month! [Reads the Paper.

Blunt. Roses for every Month! What means that?

Belv. They are, or wou'd have you think they're Curtezans, who here in Naples are to be hir'd by the Month.

Will. Kind and obliging to inform us—Pray where do these Roses grow? I would fain plant some of 'em in a Bed of mine.

Wom. Beware fuch Roses, Sir.

Will. A Pox of a Fear: I'll be bak'd with thee between a pair of Sheets, and that's thy proper Still, so I might but strow such Roses over me and under me——Fair one, wou'd you wou'd give me leave to gather at your Bush this idle Month, I wou'd go near to make some Body smell of it all the Year after.

Belv. And thou hast need of such a Remedy, for thou stinkest of Tar and Rope-ends, like a Dock or Pesthouse.

[The Woman puts herself into the Hands of a Man, and Exit.

Will. Nay, nay, you shall not leave me so. Belv. By all Means use no Violence here.

Will. Death! Just as I was going to be damnably in Love, to have her led off! I could pluck that Rose out of his Hand, and even kis the Bed, the Bush it grew in.

Fred. No Friend to Love like a long Voyage at Sea.

Blunt. Except a Nunnery, Fred.

Will. Death! But will they not be kind, quickly be kind? Thou know'ft I'm no tame Sigher, but a rampant Lion of the Forest.

Two Men drest all over with Horns of several sorts, making Grimaces at one another, with Papers pinn'd on their Backs, advance from the farther end of the Scene.

Belv. Oh the fantastical Rogues, how they are dres'd!

'Tis a Satire against the whole Sex.

Will. Is this a Fruit that grows in this warm Country?

Below

Belv. Yes: 'Tis pretty to see these Italians start, swell, and stab at the Word Cuckold, and yet stumble at Horns on every Threshold.

Will. See what's on their Back—Flowers for every —Ah Rogue! And more sweet than Roses of ev'ry Month! This is a Gardiner of Adam's own breeding.

[They dance.

Belv. What think you of those grave People? --- is a Wake in Effex half so mad or extravagant?

Will. I like their fober grave Way, 'tis a kind of legal authoriz'd Fornication, where the Men are not chid for't, nor the Women despis'd, as amongst our dull English even the Monsieurs want that part of good Manners.

Belv. But here in Italy a Monsieur is the humblest bestbred Gentleman—Duels are so bassied by Bravo's, that an Age shews not one, but between a Frenchman and a Hangman, who is as much too hard for him on the Piazza, as they are for a Dutchman on the new Bridge—But see another Crew.

Enter Florinda, Hellena, and Valeria, drest like Gipsies; Callis and Stephano, Lucetta, Phillippo and Sancho in Masquerade.

Hell. Sifter, there's your Englishman, and with him a handsome proper Fellow——I'll to him, and instead of telling him his Fortune, try my own.

Will. Gipfies, on my Life—Sure these will prattle if a Man cross their Hands. [Goes to Hellena]—Dear pretty (and I hope) young Devil, will you tell an amorous Stranger what Luck he's like to have?

Hell. Have a care how you venture with me, Sir, left. I pick your Pocket, which will more vex your English Humour, than an Italian Fortune will please you.

Will. How the Devil cam'ft thou to know my Country and Humour?

POLICE

Hell. The first I guess by a certain forward Impudence, which does not displease me at this time; and the loss of your Money will vex you, because I hope you have but very little to lose.

Will. Egad Child, thou'rt i'th right; it is so little, I dare not offer it thee for a Kindness—But cannot you divine what other Things of more value I have about me, that I would more willingly part with?

Hell. Indeed no, that's the Business of a Witch, and I am but a Gipsy yet—Yet without looking in your Hand, I have a parlous Guess, 'tis some soolish Heart you mean, an inconstant English Heart, as little worth stealing as your Purfe.

Will. Nay, then thou dost deal with the Devil, that's certain—Thou hast guess'd as right as if thou hadst been one of that Number it has languish'd for—I find you'll be better acquainted with it; nor can you take it in a better time, for I am come from Sea, Child; and Venus not being propitious to me in her own Element, I have a world of Love in store—Wou'd you be good-natur'd, and take some on't off my Hands.

Hell. Why—I could be inclin'd that way—but for a foolish Vow I am going to make—to die a Maid.

Will. Then thou art damn'd without Redemption; and as I am a good Christian, I ought in charity to divert so wicked a Design—therefore prithee, dear Creature, let me know quickly when and where I shall begin to set a helping hand to so good a Work.

Hell. If you should prevail with my tender Heart (as I begin to fear you will, for you have horrible loving Eyes) there will be difficulty in't that you'll hardly undergo for my fake.

Will. Faith Child, I have been bred in Dangers, and wear a Sword that has been employ'd in a worle Cause, than for a handsome kind Woman—Name the Danger—let it be any Thing but a long Siege, and I'll undertake it.

Hell. Can you storm?
Will. Oh, most surjously.

Hell. What think you of a Nunnery-wall? For he that wins me, must gain that first.

Will. A Nun! Oh how I love thee for't! There's no Sinner like a young Saint—Nay, now there's no denying nying me: The old Law had no Curfe (to a Woman) like dying a Maid; witness Jeptha's Daughter.

Hell. A very good Text this, if well handled; and I perceive, Father Captain, you would impose no severe Penance on her who was inclin'd to console her self before she took Orders.

Will. If she be young and handsome.

Hell. Ay, there's it—but if she be not.

Will. By this Hand, Child, I have an implicit Faith, and dare venture on thee with all Faults—befides, 'tis more meritorious to leave the World when thou hast tasted and prov'd the Pleasures on't; then 'twill be a Virtue in thee, which now will be pure Ignorance.

Hell. I perceive, good Father Captain, you design only to make me sit for Heaven——but if on the contrary you should quite divert me from it, and bring me back to the World again, I should have a new Man to seek I find; and what a Grief that will be——for when I begin, I sanfy I shall love like any thing: I never try'd yet.

Will, Egad, and that's kind—Prithee, dear Creature, give me Credit for a Heart, for faith I'm a very honest Fellow—Oh, I long to come first to the Banquet of Love; and such a swinging Appetite I bring—Oh, I'm impatient. Thy Lodging, Sweet-heart, thy Lodging, or I'm a dead Man!

Hell. Why must we be either guilty of Fornication or Murder, if we converse with you Men?——And is there no Difference between leave to love me, and leave to lie with me?

Will. Faith, Child, they were made to go together.

Lucet. Are you fure this is the Man? [Pointing to Blunt.

Sancho. When did I mistake your Game?

Lucet. This is a Stranger, I know by his gazing; if he be brisk he'll venture to follow me; and then if I understand my Trade, he's mine: He's English too, and they say, that's a Sort of good-natur'd loving People, and have generally so kind an Opinion of themselves, that a Woman with any Wit may flatter 'em into any Sort of Fool she pleases.

Blunt.

Blunt. 'Tis so—she is taken—I have Beauties which my false Glass at home did not discover.

[She often passes by Blunt, and gazes on bim; be struts, and cocks, and walks, and gazes on ber.

Flor. This Woman watches me so, I shall get no Opportunity to discover my self to him, and so miss the Intent of my coming—But as I was saying, Sir—by this Line you should be a Lover. [Looking in bis Hand.

Love, or pretend to be so—Come, let me go, I'm weary of this fooling.

[Walks away.]

Flor. I will not, 'till you have confes'd whether the Paffion that you have vow'd Florinda be true or false.

[She holds bim, he strives to get from her. [Turns quick towards her.

Belv. Florinda! Flor. Softly.

Belo. Thou hast nam'd one will fix me here for ever.

Flor. She'll be disappointed then, who expects you this Night at the Garden-gate, and if you'll fail not—as let me see the other Hand—you will go near to do—she wows to die or make you happy.

[Looks on Callis, who observes 'em.

Belv. What canft thou mean?

Flor. That which I fay-Farewel. - [Offers to go.

Belv. Oh charming Sibyl stay, complete that Joy, which, as it is, will turn into Distraction!——Where must I be? At the Garden-gate? I know it—at Night, you say——I'll sooner forfeit Heaven than disobey.

Enter Don Pedro and other Masquers, and pass over the Stage.

Call. Madam, your Brother's here.

Flor. Take this to instruct you farther.

[Gives him a Letter, and goes off.

Fred. Have a Care, Sir, what you promise; this may be a Trap laid by her Brother to ruin you.

Belo. Do not disturb my Happiness with Doubts.

Opens the Letter.

Will. My dear pretty Creature, a thousand Blessings on thee; still in this Habit, you say, and after Dinner at this Place.

Hell.

Hell. Yes, if you will fwear to keep your Heart, and not bestow it between this Time and that.

Will. By all the little Gods of Love, I swear, I'll leave it with you; and if you run away with it, those Deities of Justice will revenge me. [Ex. all the Women.

Fred. Do you know the Hand?

Belv. 'Tis Florinda's.

All Bleffings fall upon the virtuous Maid.

Fred. Nay, no Idolatry, a fober Sacrifice I'll allow you.

Belv. Oh Friends! The welcom'st News, 'the softest Letter—Nay, you shall see it; and could you now be serious, I might be made the happiest Man the Sun shines on.

Will. The Reason of this mighty Joy?

Belv. See how kindly she invites me to deliver her from the threatned Violence of her Brother—Will you not affift me?

Will. I know not what thou meanest, but I'll make one at any Mischief where a Woman's concern'd—but she'll be grateful to us for the Favour, will she not?

Belo. How mean you?

Will. How should I mean? Thou know it there's but one Way for a Woman to oblige me.

Belv. Don't profane—the Maid is nicely virtuous.

Will. Pho, pox, then she's fit for nothing but a Hust band; let her e'en go, Colonel.

Fred. Peace, she's the Colonel's Mistress, Sir.

Will. Let her be the Devil; if she be thy Miltres, I'll ferve her name the Way.

Belo. Read here this Postscript. [Gives him a Letter. Will. [Reads.] At Ten at Night—at the Garden-gate—of which, if I cannot get the Key, I will contrive a Way over the Wall—come attended with a Friend or Two—Kind Heart, if we three cannot weave a String to let her down a Garden-wall, 'twere Pity but the Hangman wove one for us all.

Fred. Let her alone for that: Your Woman's Wit, your fair kind Woman, will out-trick a Brother or a Jew, and contrive like a Jesuit in Chains—But see, Ned Blum, is stol'n out after the Lure of a Damsel. [Ex. Blunt and Lucer.]

Thirty.

Fred. I hope 'tis some common crasty Sinner, one that will fit him: It may be she'll sell him for Peru, the Rogue's sturdy and would work well in a Mine; at least I hope she'll dress him for our Mirth; cheat him of all, then have him well-savouredly bang'd, and turn'd out naked at Midnight.

Will Prithee what Humour is he of, that you wish'd him fo well?

Belv. Why, of an English Elder Brother's Humour, educated in a Nursery, with a Maid to tend him 'till Fisteen, and lies with his Grand-mother 'till he's of Age; one that knows no Pleasure beyond riding to the next Fair; or going up to London with his right worshipful Father in Parliament-time; wearing gay Clothes, or making honourable Love to his Lady Mother's Laundry-maid: Get's Drunk at a Hunting-match, and ten to one then gives some Proof of his Prowes——A Pox upon him, he's our Banker, and has all our Cash about him, and if he fail we are all broke.

damn'd stingy Quality, that will secure our Stock; I know not in what Danger it were indeed, if the Jilt should pretend she is in love with him, for 'tis a kind believing Coxcomb; otherwise if he parts with more than a Piece of Eight—geld him: For which offer he may chance to be beaten, if she be a Whore of the first Rank.

Belv. Nay the Rogue will not be easily beaten, he's flout enough; perhaps if they talk beyond his Capacity, he may chance to exercise his Courage upon some of them; else I'm sure they'll find it as difficult to beat as to please him.

Will. 'Tis a lucky Devil to light upon so kind a Wench! Fred. Thou hadst a great deal of Talk with thy little Gipsy, coud'st thou do no good upon her? For mine was hard-hearted.

Will. Hang her, she was some damn'd honest Person of Quality, I'm sure, she was so very free and witty. If her Face be but answerable to her Wit and Humour, I wou'd be bound to Constancy this Month to gain her. In the mean Time, have you made no kind Acquaintance since you came to Town?——You do not use to be honest so long, Gentlemen.

Fred. Faith Love has kept us honest, we have been all fir'd with a Beauty newly come to Town, the famous Paduana Angelica Bianca.

Will. What the Mistress of the dead Spanish General?

Beto. Yes, she's now only the ador'd Beauty of all the Youth in Naples, who put on all their Charms to appear lovely in her Sight, their Coaches, Liveries, and themfelves, all gay, as on a Monarch's Birth-day, to attract the Eyes of this fair Charmer, while she has the Pleasure o behold all languish for her that see her.

Fred. 'Tis pretty to see with how much Love the Men regard her, and how much Envy the Women.

Will. What Gallant has she?

Belv. None, she's expos'd to Sale, and four Days in the Week she's yours—for so much a Month.

Will. The very Thought of it quenches all Manner of Fire in me-yet prithee let's see her.

Belv. Let's first to Dinner, and after that we'll pass the Day as you please—but at Night ye must be at my Devotion.

Will. I will not fail you.

Execunt.

ACT II. SCENE I.

The Long Street.

Enter Belvile and Frederick in Masquing-habits, and Willmore in his own Glothes, with a Vizard in his Hand.

Willmore.

Belv. Because whatever Extravagances we commit in those Faces, our own may not be oblig'd to answer 'em.

Will. I should have chang'd my Eternal Buff too; but no Matter, my little Gipfy wou'd not have found me out then: For if she shou'd change her's it is impossible I shou'd know her, unless I should hear her prattle——A Pox on't, I cannot get her out of my Head: Pray Heaven, if ever I do see her again, she prove damnable ugly, that I may fortify myself against her Tongue.

Belv. Have a Care of Love, for o' my Conscience she was not of a Quality to give thee any Hopes.

Will. Pox on 'em, why do they draw a Man in then; She has play'd with my Heart so, that 'twill never lie still, 'till I have met with some kind Wench, that will play the Game out with me———Oh for my Arms sull of soft, white, kind——Woman! Such as I fansy Angelica.

Belv. This is her House, if you were but in Stock to get Admittance; they have not din'd yet; I perceive the Picture is not out.

Enter Blunt.

Will. I long to see the Shadow of the fair Substance, a Man may gaze on that for nothing.

Blunt. Colonel, thy Hand—and thine Fred. I have been an Ass, a deluded Fool, a very Coxcomb from my Birth 'till this Hour, and heartily repent my little Faith.

Belv.

Belv. What the Devil's the Matter with thee, Ned?

Blunt. Oh fuch a Mistress, Fred. such a Girl!

Will. Ha! where?

Blunt. So fond, so amorous, so toying and fine! and all for sheer Love, ye Rogue! Oh how she look'd and kiss'd! and sooth'd my Heart from my Bosom. I cannot think I was awake, and yet methinks I see and feel her Charms still—Fred.—Try if she have not left the Taste of her balmy Kisses upon my Lips———— [Kisses him.

Belv. Ha, ha, ha!

Will. Death Man, where is she?

Blunt. What a Dog was I to stay in dull England so long—How have I laugh'd at the Colonel when he sigh'd for Love! But now the little Archer has reveng'd him, and by his own Dart, I can guess at all his Joys, which then I took for Fancies, mere Dreams and Fables—Well, I'm resolv'd to sell all in Esex, and plant here for ever.

Belv. What a Bleffing'tis thou hast a Mistress thou dar'st boast of, for I know thy Humour is rather to have a proclaim'd Clap, than a secret Amour.

Will. Doft know her Name?

Blunt. Her Name? No, 'Sheartlikins: What care I for Names?—She's fair, young, brifk and kind even to Ravishment: And what a Pox care I for knowing her by another Title.

Will. Didft give her any Thing?

Blunt. Give her!——Ha, ha, ha! Why, she's a Person of Quality—That's a good one, give her! 'Sheart-likins doit think such Creatures are to be bought? Or are we provided for such a Purchase? Give her quoth ye? Why she presented me with this Bracelet, for the Toy of a Diamond I us'd to wear: No, Gentlemen, Ned Blunt is not every Body——She expects me again To-night.

Will. Egad that's well; we'll all go.

Blunt. Not a Soul: No, Gentlemen, you are Wits;

I am a dull Country Rogue, I.

Fred. Well, Sir, for all your Person of Quality, I shall be very glad to understand your Purse be secure; 'tis our B whole whole Estate at present, which we are loth to hazard in one Bottom: Come, Sir, unload.

Blunt. Take the necessary Trifle, useless now to me, that am belov'd by such a Gentlewoman—'Sheartlikins Money! Here take mine too.

Fred. No, keep that to be cozen'd, that we may laugh.

Will. Cozen'd!——Death! wou'd I cou'd meet with one that wou'd cozen me of all the Love I cou'd spare Tonight.

Fred. Pox 'tis fome common Whore upon my Life.

Blunt. A Whore! yes with fuch Clothes! fuch Jewels! fuch a House! fuch Furniture, and so attended! a Whore!

Belv. Why yes, Sir, they are Whores, tho' they'll neither entertain you with Drinking, Swearing, or Baudy; are Whores in all those gay Clothes, and right Jewels; are Whores with great Houses richly furnish'd with Velvet Beds, Store of Plate, handsome Attendance, and fine Coaches; are Whores, and errant ones.

Will. Pox on't, where do these fine Whores live?

Belv. Where no Rogue in Office, yelep'd Constables, dare give 'em Laws, nor the Wine-inspir'd Bullies of the Town break their Windows; yet they are Whores, tho' this Essex Calf believes them Persons of Quality.

Blunt. 'Sheartlikins, y'are all Fools, there are things about this Effex Calf, that shall take with the Ladies beyond all your Wit and Parts. This Shape and Size, Gentlemen, are not to be despis'd; my Waste tolerably long, with other inviting Signs, that shall be nameless.

Will. Egad I believe he may have met with some Perfon of Quality that may be kind to him.

Belv. Dost thou perceive any such tempting things about him, shou'd make a fine Woman, and of Quality, pick him out from all Mankind, to throw away her Youth and Beauty upon, nay, and her dear Heart too?——no, no, Angelica has rais'd the Price too high.

Will. May she languish for Mankind till she die, and be damn'd for that one Sin alone.

Enter two Bravoes, and hang up a great Picture of Angelica's against the Balcony, and two little ones at each side of the Door.

Bek. See there the fair Sign to the Inn, where a Man may lodge that's Fool enough to give her Price.

[Will. gazes on the Picture.

Blunt. 'Sheartlikins, Gentlemen, what's this? Belv. A famous Curtezan that's to be fold.

Blunt. How! to be fold! nay then I have nothing to fay to her—fold! what Impudence is practis'd in this Country?—with Order and Decency Whoring's establish'd here by virtue of the Inquisition—Come let's begone, I'm sure we're no Chapmen for this Commodity.

Fred. Thou art none, I'm sure, unless thou cou'd'st have her in thy Bed at the Price of a Coach in the Street.

Will. How wondrous fair she is——a thousand Crowns a Month——by Heaven as many Kingdoms were too little. A plague of this Poverty—of which I ne'er complain, but when it hinders my Approach to Beauty, which Virtue ne'er cou'd purchase.

[Reads] A thousand Crowns a

Blunt. What's this?

"Sheartlikins, here's a Sum! fure 'tis a Mistake.

Hark you Friend, does she take or give so much by the Month!

Fred. A thousand Crowns! Why, 'tis a Portion for the

Blunt. Hark ye Friends, won't she trust?

Brav. This is a Trade, Sir, that cannot live by Credit. Enter Don Pedro in Masquerade, followed by Stephano.

Belv. See, here's more Company, let's walk off a while. [Pedro Reads.] [Exeunt English.

Enter Angelica and Moretta in the Balcony, and draw a Silk

Ped. Fetch me a thousand Crowns, I never wish'd to buy this Beauty at an easier Rate. [Passes off.

Ang. Prithee what faid those Fellows to thee?

Brav. Madam, the first were Admirers of Beauty only, but no Purchasers; they were merry with your Price and Picture, laugh'd at the Sum, and so pass'd off.

Ang. No matter, I am not displeas'd with their Rallying; their Wonder feeds my Vanity, and he that wishes to buy, gives me more Pride, than he that gives my Price can make me Pleasure.

Brav. Madam, the last I knew thro' all his Disguises to be Don Pedro, Nephew to the General, and who was with him in Pampelona.

Ang. Don Pedro! my old Gallant's Nephew! When his Uncle dy'd, he left him a vast Sum of Money; it is he who was so in love with me at Padua, and who us'd to make the General so jealous.

Moret. Is this he that us'd to prance before our Window, and take fuch care to shew himself an amorous As? if I am not mistaken, he is the likeliest Man to give your

Ang. The Man is brave and generous, but of an Humour so uneasy and inconstant, that the Victory over his Heart is as soon lost as won; a Slave that can add little to the Triumph of the Conqueror: But Inconstancy's the Sin of all Mankind, therefore I'm resolv'd that nothing but Gold shall charm my Heart.

Moret. I'm glad on't; 'tis only Interest that Women of our Profession ought to consider: Tho' I wonder what has kept you from that general Disease of our Sex so long, I mean that of being in love.

Ang. A kind, but sullen Star, under which I had the Happiness to be born; yet I have had no time for Love; the bravest and noblest of Mankind have purchas'd my Favours at so dear a Rate, as if no Coin but Gold were current with our Trade—But here's Don Pedro again, setch me my Lute—for 'tis for him or Don Antonio the Vice-Roy's Son, that I have spread my Nets.

Enter at one Door Don Pedro and Stephano; Don Antonio and Diego at the other Door, with People following him in Masquerade, antickly attird, some with Musick: They both go up to the Picture.

Ant. A thousand Crowns! Had not the Painter flatter'd her, I should not think it dear.

Pedro. Flatter'd her! By Heaven he cannot. I have feen the Original, nor is there one Charm here more than adorns her Face and Eyes; all this foft and sweet, with a certain languishing Air, which no Artist can represent.

Ant. What I heard of her Beauty before had fir'd my Soul, but this Confirmation of it has blown it into a Flame:

Pag. Sir, I have known you throw away a thousand Crowns on a worse Face, and tho' y'are near your Marriage, you may venture a little Love here; Florinda—will not miss it.

Pedro. Ha! Florinda! Sure'tis Antonio.

Ant. Florinda! Name not those distant Joys, there's not one Thought of her will check my Passion here.

Pedro. Florinda scorn'd! And all my Hopes descated of the Possessino of Angelica! [A Noise of a Lute above. Ant. gazes up.] Her Injuries by Heaven he shall not boast of.

[Song to the Lute above.

SONG.

I.

HEN Damon first began to love
He languish d in a soft Desire,
And knew not how the Gods to move,
To lessen or increase his Fire.
For Celia in her charming Eyes
Wore all Love's Sweet, and all his Cruelties.

II.

But as beneath a Shade he lay,
Weaving of Flowers for Celia's Hair,
She chan'd to lead her Flock that Way,
And saw the am'rous Shepherd there.
She gaz'd around upon the Place,
And saw the Grove (resembling Night)
To all the Joys of Love invite;
Whilst guilty Smiles and Blushes dress dher Face.
At this the bashful Youth all Transport grew,
And with kind Force he taught the Virgin bow
To yield what all his Sighs could never do.

B 3

Ant.

Ant. By Heav'n she's charming fair!

[Angelica throws open the Curtains, and bows to Antonio, who pulls off bis Vixard and bows and blows up Kisses. Pedro unseen looks in his Face.

Pedro. 'Tis he, the false Antonio!

Anto. Friend, where must I pay my Offering of Love? [To the Bravo.

My thousand Crowns I mean.

Pedro. That Offering I have design'd to make, And yours will come to late.

Ant. Prithee be gone, I shall grow angry else,

And then thou art not fafe.

Pedro. My Anger may be fatal, Sir, as yours; And he that enters here may prove this Truth.

Ant. I know not who thou art, but I am fure thou'rt worth my killing, in aiming at Angelica.

[They draw and fight.

Enter Willmore and Blunt who draw and part'em

Blunt. 'Sheartlikins, here's fine doings.

Will. Tilting for the Wench I'm fure——nay gad, if that wou'd win her, I have as good a Sword as the best of ye——Put up——Put up, and take another Time and Place, for this is design'd for Lovers only.

[They all put up.

Pedro. We are prevented; dare you meet me To-morrow on the Mole?

For I've a Title to a better Quarrel,

That of Florinda, in whose credulous Heart

Thou'ft made an Int'rest, and destroy'd my Hopes.

Ant. Dare?

I'll meet thee there as early as the Day.

Pedro. We will come thus difguis'd, that whofoever chance to get the better, he may escape unknown.

Ant. It shall be so. [Ex. Pedro and Stephano. Who shall this Rival be? Unless the English Colonel, of whom I've often heard Don Pedro speak; it must be he, and Time he were removed, who lays a Claim to all my Happiness.

[Willmore having gazed all this while on the Pisture, pulls down a little one.

Will.

Will. This Posture's loose and negligent, The Sight on't wou'd beget a warm Desire In Souls, whom Impotence and Age had chill'd.

This must along with me.

Brav. What means this Rudeness, Sir?——Restore the Picture.

Ant. Ha! Rudeness committed to the fair Angelica!

——Restore the Picture, Sir.

Will. Indeed I will not, Sir. Ant. By Heav'n but you shall.

Will. Nay, do not shew your Sword; if you do, by this dear Beauty——I will shew mine too.

Ant. What Right can you pretend to't.

Will. That of Possession, which I will maintain—you perhaps have a thousand Crowns to give for the Original.

Ant. No matter, Sir, you shall restore the Picture.

Ang. Oh Moretta! What's the Matter?

[Ang. and Moret. above.

Ant. Or leave your Life behind.

Will. Death! You lie-I will do neither.

Ang. Hold I command you, if for me you fight.

[They fight, the Spaniards join with Antonio, Blunt laying on like mad. They leave off and Bow.

Will. How heavenly fair she is!——Ah Plague of her Price.

Ang. You Sir in Buff, you that appear a Soldier, that first began this Insolence.

Will. 'Tis true, I did so, if you call it Insolence for a Man to preserve himself; I saw your charming Picture, and was wounded: Quite thro' my Soul each pointed Beauty ran; and wanting a thousand Crowns to procure my Remedy, I laid this little Picture to my Bosom——Which if you cannot allow me, I'll resign.

Ang. No, you may keep the Trifle.

Ant. You shall first ask me Leave, and this.

[Fight again as before.

Enter Belv. and Fred. who join with the English.

Ang. Hold; will you ruin me?——Biskey, Sebastian, part them.

[The Spaniards are beaten off.

Moret. Oh Madam, we're undone, a Pox upon that rude Fellow, he's fet on to ruin us: We shall never see good Days, 'till all the fighting poor Rogues are sent to the Gallies.

Enter Belvile, Blunt, and Willmore, with their Shirts bloody.

Blunt. 'Sheartlikins, beat me at this Sport and I'll ne'er wear Sword more.

Belv. The Devil's in thee for a mad Fellow, thou art always one at an unlucky Adventure——Come let's be gone whilft we are safe, and remember these are Spaniards, a Sort of People that know how to revenge an Affront.

TTo Will.

Fred. You bleed; I hope you are not wounded.

Will. Not much—A Plague upon your Dons, if they fight no better they'll ne'er recover Flanders—What the Devil was't to them that I took down the Picture?

Blunt. Took it! 'Sheartlikins, we'll have the great One too; 'tis ours by Conquest——Prithee help me up, and

I'll pull it down—

Ang. Stay Sir, and e're you affront me farther, let me know how you durst commit this Outrage—To you I speak, Sir, for you appear like a Gentleman?

Will. To me, Madam?——Gentlemen your Servant.

[Belv. stays bim.

Belv. Is the Devil in thee? Do'ft know the Danger of entring the House of an incens'd Curtezan?

Will. I thank you for your Care—But there are other Matters in Hand, there are, tho' we have no great Temptation—Death let me go.

Fred. Yes, to your Lodgings, if you will, but not in here—Damn these gay Harlots—By this Hand, I'll have as sound and handsome a Whore for a Patacoon—Death Man Cha'll mundouther Death Man, she'll murder thee.

Will. Oh! Fear me not, shall I not venture where a Beauty calls? A lovely charming Beauty? For fear of Danger? When by Heaven there's none so great as to long for her, whilst I want Money to purchase her.

Fred.

Fred. Therefore 'tis loss of Time, unless you had the thousand Crowns to pay.

Will. It may be she may give a Favour, at least I shall have the pleasure of saluting her when I enter, and when I depart.

Belv. Pox, she'll as foon lie with thee as kifs thee, and fooner stab than do either—you shall not go.

Ang. Fear not, Sir, all I have to wound with, is my Eyes.

Blunt. Let him go, 'Sheartlikins, I believe the Gentlewoman means well.

Belv. Well, take thy Fortune, we'll expect you in the next Street.—Farewel Fool,—farewel.

Will. B'ye Colonel. [Goes in. Fred. The Rogue's stark mad for a Wench. [Exeunt.

SCENE A fine Chamber.

Enter Willmore, Angelica, and Moretta.

Ang. Infolent Sir, how durft you pull down my Picture? Will. Rather, how durft you fet it up to tempt poor amorous Mortals with so much Excellence? which I find you have but too well consulted by the unmerciful Price you fet upon't.——Is all this Heaven of Beauty shewn to move Despair in those that cannot buy? And can you think the Effects of that Despair should be less extravagant than I have shewn?

Ang. I fent for you to ask my Pardon, Sir, not to aggravate your Crime.—I thought I shou'd have seen you at my Feet imploring it.

Will. You are deceived, I came to rail at you, and talk fuch Truths too, as shall let you see the Vanity of that Pride, which taught you how to set such a Price on Sin: For such it is, whilst that which is Love's Due is meanly barter'd for.

Ang. Ha, ha, ha, alas good Captain, what pity 'tis your edifying Doctrine will do no Good upon meMoretta, fetch the Gentleman a Glass, and let him survey himself to see what Charms he has—and guess my Business.

[Aside in a soft Tone:

B 5 Moret.

described Lors of Lors and Market

Moret. He knows himself of old, I believe those Breeches and he have been acquainted ever since he was beaten at Worcester.

Ang. Nay, do not abuse the poor Creature .-

Moret. Good Weather-beaten Corporal, will you march off? We have no need of your Doctrine, the you have of our Charity; but at present we have no scraps, we can afford no kindness for God's sake; in sine, Sirrah, the Price is too high i'th Month for you, therefore troop, I say.

Will. Here, good Fore-Woman of the Shop, serve me, and I'll be gone.

Moret. Keep it to pay your Laundress, your Linnen stinks of the Gun-Room; for here's no selling by Retail.

Will. Thou hast fold plenty of thy stale Ware at a cheap Rate.

Moret. Ay, the more filly kind Heart I; but this is an Age wherein Beauty is at higher Rates.——In fine, you know the Price of this.

* Will. I grant you 'tis here set down a thousand Crowns a Month———Baud, take your black Lead and sum it up, that I may have a Pistole-worth of these vain gay Things, and I'll trouble you no more.

Moret. Pox on him, he'll fret me to Death:

Piece.

Will. "Tis very hard, the whole Cargo or nothing—Faith, Madam, my Stock will not reach it, I cannot be your Chapman.—Yet I have Countrymen in Town, Merchants of Love, like me; I'll fee if they'll put in for a Share, we cannot lose much by it, and what we have no nife for, we'll sell upon Friday's Mart, at—Who gives more? I am studying, Madam, how to purchase you, tho' at present I am unprovided of Money.

Ang. Sure this from any other Man would anger menor shall he know the Conquest he has made———Poor angry man, how I despise this Railing.

And one that feores this Baseness which you practise.

Poor as I am, I would not sell myself,

No,

No, not to gain your charming high priz'd Person. Tho' I admire you strangely for your Beauty, Yet I contemn your Mind.

And yet I wou'd at any Rate enjoy you;
At your own Rate—but cannot—See here
The only Sum I can command on Earth;
I know not where to eat when this is gone:
Yet fuch a Slave I am to Love and Beauty,
This last I'll facrifice to enjoy you.

-Nay, do not frown, I know you are to be bought,

And wou'd be bought by me

For a mean trifling Sum, if I could pay it down:

Which happy Knowledge I will repeat,

And lay it to my Heart, it has a Virtue in't,
And foon will cure those Wounds your Eyes have made.

—And yet—there's something so divinely powerful there—

Nay, I will gaze—to let you fee my Strength.

[Holds ber, looks on ber, and pauses and sights. By Heaven, bright Creature——I would not for the World thy Fame were half so fair as thy Face.

Ang. His Words go thro' me to the very Soul. [Afide.

If you have nothing else to say to me.

But that secures my Heart, and all the Flames it feels

Are but fo many Lufts,

I know it by their fudden bold Intrufion.

The Fire's impatient, and betrays 'tis false-For had it been the purer Flame of Love,

I should have pin'd and languish'd at your Feet, Ere found the Impudence to have discover'd it. I now dare stand your Scorn, and your Denial.

Moret. Sure she's bewitch'd, that she can stand thus tamely, and hear his saucy Railing,——Sirrah, will you be gone?

Ang. How dare you take this liberty? --- Withdraw.

Pray tell me, Sir, are not you guilty of the fame mercenary Crime? When a Lady is proposed to you for a B 6 Wife.

Wife, you never ask, how Fair, Discreet, or Virtuous she is; but what's her Fortune—which if but small, you cry—She will not do my Business—and basely leave her, tho' she languish for you.—Say, is not this as poor?

Will. It is a barbarous Custom, which I will scorn to defend in our Sex, and do despise in yours.

Ang. Thou art a brave Fellow! Put up thy Gold, and know, that were thy Fortune large, as is thy Soul, thou shouldst not buy my Love, couldst thou forget those mean Effects of Vanity, which set me out to Sale; and as a Lover, prize my yielding Joys.

Canst thou believe they'll be entirely thine, Without considering they were mercenary?

Will. I cannot tell, I must bethink me first——ha, Death, I'm going to believe her.

[Aside.

Ang. Prithee confirm that Faith—or if thou canst not—flatter me a little, 'twill please me from thy Mouth.

Will. Curse on thy charming Tongue! Dost thou return My seign'd Contempt with so much subtilty?

Aside. Thou'st found the easiest way into my Heart,
Tho' I yet know that all thou say'st is false.

[Turning from ber in a Rage.

Ang. By all that's good 'tis real,

I never lov'd before, tho' oft a Miftress.

——Shall my first Vows be slighted?

Will. What can she mean? [Aside. Ang. I find you cannot credit me. [In an angry Tone.

Will. I know you take me for an errant Ass,

An As that may be sooth'd into Belief,

And then be us'd at pleasure.

But, Madam, I have been so often cheated

By perjur'd, foft, deluding Hypocrites,
'That I've no Faith left for the cozening Sex,
Especially for Women of your Trade.

Ang. The low Esteem you have of me, perhaps

May bring my Heart again:
For I have Pride that yet furmounts my Love.

[She turns with Pride, be holds her.

Will. Throw off this Pride, this Enemy to Blifs, And shew the Power of Love; 'tis with those Arms I can be only vanquish'd, made a Slave.

Ang. Is all my mighty Expectation vanish'd?

-No, I will not hear thee talk,—thou hast a Charm In every word, that draws my Heart away.

And all the thousand Trophies I design'd,

Thou hast undone—Why art thou fost?

Thy Looks are bravely rough, and meant for War.

Couldst thou not storm on still?

I then perhaps had been as free as thou.

Will. Death! How she throws her Fire about my Soul!

Take heed, fair Creature, how you raise my Hopes, Which once assum'd pretend to all Dominion.

There's not a Joy thou hast in Store

I shall not then command;

For which I'll pay thee back my Soul, my Life. Come, let's begin th' Account this happy Minute.

Ang. And will you pay me then the Price I ask?
Will. Oh, why dost thou draw me from an awful Wor-fhip,

By shewing thou art no Divinity?
Conceal the Fiend, and shew me all the Angel;

Keep me but ignorant, and I'll be devout, And pay my Vows for ever at this Shrine.

[Kneels and kiffes ber Hand,

Ang. The Pay I mean is but thy Love for mine.

Can you give that?

Will. Intirely——come, let's withdraw: Where I'll renew my Vows,——and breathe 'em with such Ardour, thou shalt not doubt my Zeal.

Ang. Thou hast a Power too strong to be resisted.

Moret. Now my Curse go with you—Is all our Project sallen to this? To love the only Enemy to our Trade? Nay, to love such a Shameroon, a very Beggar; nay, a Pirate-Beggar, whose Business it is to risle and be gone, a No-Purchase, No-Pay Tatterdemalion, an English Piccaroon; a Rogue that sights for daily Drink, and takes a Pride Pride in being loyally loufy,—Oh, I could curse now, if I durst—This is the Fate of most Whores.

Trophies which from believing Fops we win, Are Spoils to those who cozen us again.

ACT III. SCENE I.

A Street.

Enter Florinda, Valeria, Hellena, in Antick different Dresses from what they were in before, Callis attending.

Florinda.

Wonder what should make my Brother in so ill a Humour: I hope he has not sound out our Ramble this Morning.

Hell. No, if he had, we should have heard on't at both Ears, and have been mew'd up this Afternoon; which I would not for the World should have happen'd——Hey ho! I'm fad as a Lover's Lute.

Val. Well, methinks we have learn'd this Trade of Gipfies as readily as if we had been bred upon the Road to Loretto; and yet I did fo fumble when I told the Stranger his Fortune, that I was afraid I should have told my own and yours by mistake——But methinks Hellena has been very serious ever since.

Flor. I would give my Garters she were in love, to be reveng'd upon her for abusing me——How is't Hellena?

Hell. Ah!—Would I had never feen my mad Monfieur—and yet for all your laughing I am not in love—and yet this small Acquaintance, o'my Conscience, will never out of my Head.

Val.

Val. Ha, ha, ha,——I laugh to think how thou art fitted with a Lover, a Fellow that, I warrant, loves every new Face he sees.

Hell. Hum—he has not kept his Word with me here—and may be taken up—that Thought is not very pleasant to me—what the Deuce should this be now that I feel?

Val. What is't like?

Hell. Nay, the Lord knows——but if I should be hanged, I cannot choose but be angry and afraid, when I think that mad Fellow should be in love with any Body but me——What to think of myself I know not——Would I could meet with some true damn'd Gipsy, that I might know my Fortune.

Val. Know it! Why there's nothing so easy: Thou wilt love this wandring Inconstant till thou sind'st thyself hang'd about his Neck, and then be as mad to get free again.

Flor. Yes, Valeria; we shall see her bestride his Baggage-horse, and follow him to the Campaign.

Hell. So, so; now you are provided for, there's no care taken of poor me—But since you have set my Heart a wishing, I am resolv'd to know for what. I will not die of the Pip, so I will not.

Flor. Art thou mad to talk fo? Who will like thee well enough to have thee, that hears what a mad Wench thou art?

Hell. Like me! I don't intend every he that likes me shall have me, but he that I like: I shou'd have staid in the Nunnery still, if I had lik'd my Lady Abbess as well as she lik'd me. No, I came thence, not (as my wise Brother imagines) to take an eternal Farewel of the World, but to love and to be belov'd; and I will be belov'd, or I'll get one of your Men, so I will.

Val. Am I put into the Number of Lovers?

Hell. You! My Cuz, I know thou art too good-natur'd to leave us in any Defign: 'Thou'lt venture a Cast, tho' thou comest off a Loser, especially with such a Gamester———I observ'd your Man, and your willing Ears incline that way; and if you are not a Lover, 'tis an Art soon learn'd——that I find.

[Sighs. Flor.

Flor. I wonder how you learn'd to love so easily, I had a thousand Charms to meet my Eyes and Ears, ere I cou'd yield; and 'twas the knowledge of Belvile's Merit, not the surprizing Person, took my Soul——Thou art too rash to give a Heart at first Sight.

Hell. Hang your confidering Lover; I ne'er thought beyond the Fancy, that 'twas a very pretty, idle, filly kind of Pleasure to pass one's time with, to write little soft nonsensical Billets, and with great Difficulty and Danger receive Answers; in which I shall have my Beauty prais'd, my Wit admir'd (tho' little or none) and have the Vanity and Power to know I am desirable; then I have the more Inclination that Way, because I am to be a Nun, and so shall not be suspected to have any such earthly Thoughts about me—But when I walk thus—and sigh thus—they'll think my Mind's upon my Monastery, and cry, how happy 'tis she's so resolv'd!—But not a Word of Man.

Flor. What a mad Creature's this!

Hell. I'll warrant, if my Brother hears either of you figh, he cries (gravely)—I fear you have the Indiscretion to be in love, but take heed of the Honour of our House, and your own unspotted Fame; and so he conjures on 'till he has laid the soft-wing'd God in your Hearts, or broke the Bird's-nest——But see here comes your Lover: But where's my Inconstant? Let's step aside, and we may learn something.

[Go aside.

Enter Belvile, Fred. and Blunt.

Bely. What means this? The Picture's taken in.

Blunt. It may be the Wench is good-natur'd, and will be kind gratis. Your Friend's a proper handsome Fellow.

Belv. I rather think she has cut his Throat and is fled:

I am mad he should throw himself into Dangers—Pox on't, I shall want him To-night—let's knock and ask for him.

Hell. My Heart goes a-pit-a-pat, for fear 'tis my Man they talk of. [Knock, Moretta above.]

Moret. What would you have?

Belv. Tell the Stranger that enter'd here about two Hours ago, that his Friends stay here for him.

Moret.

Moret. A Curse upon him for Moretta, would he were at the Devil—But he's coming to you. [Enter Willmore. Hell. I, I, 'tis he. Oh how this vexes me.

Belv. And how, and how, dear Lad, has Fortune smil'd? Are we to break her Windows, or raise up Altars to her? Hah!

Will. Does not my Fortune fit triumphant on my Brow? Dost not see the little wanton God there all gay and smiling? Have I not an Air about my Face and Eyes, that distinguish me from the Crowd of common Lovers? By Heav'n, Cupid's Quiver has not half so many Darts as her Eyes—Oh such a Bona Roba, to sleep in her Arms is lying in Fresco, all perfum'd Air about me.

Hell. Here's fine Encouragement for me to fool on. Afide.

Will. Hark ye, where didft thou purchase that rich Canary we drank To-day? Tell me, that I may adore the Spigot, and facrifice to the Butt: The Juice was divine, into which I must dip my Rosary, and then bless all Things that I would have bold or fortunate.

Belv. Well, Sir, let's go take a Bottle, and hear the Story of your Success.

Fred. Would not French Wine do better?

Will. Damn the hungry Balderdash; cheerful Sack has a generous Virtue in't, inspiring a successful Confidence, gives Eloquence to the Tongue, and Vigour to the Soul; and has in a few Hours compleated all my Hopes and Wishes. There's nothing left to raise new Defire in me-Come let's be gay and wanton—And Gentlemen study, fludy what ye want, for here are Friends-That will fupply, Gentlemen,—Hark! What a charming Sound they make-'Tis he and she Gold whilst here, shall beget new Pleasures every Moment.

Blunt. But hark ye, Sir, you are not married are you? Will. All the Honey of Martrimony, but none of the Sting, Friend.

Blunt. 'Sheartlikins, thou'rt a fortunate Rogue.

Will. I am so, Sir, let these inform you———Ha, how sweetly they chime! Pox of Poverty, it makes a Man a Slave, makes Wit and Honour fneak, my Soul grew lean and rufty for want of Credit. Blunt.

Blunt. 'Sheartlikins, this I like well, it looks like my lucky Bargain! Oh how I long for the Approach of my 'Squire, that is to conduct me to her House again. Why! here's two provided for.

Fred. By this Light y're happy Men.

Blunt. Fortune is pleased to smile on us, Gentlemen,
To smile on us.

Enter Sancho, and pulls Blunt by the Sleeve. They go aside.

Sancho. Sir, my Lady expects you—She has remov'd all that might oppose your Will and Pleasure—And is impatient 'till you come.

Blunt. Sir, I'll attend you—Oh the happiest Rogue! I'll take no Leave, lest they either dog me, or stay me.

[Ex. with Sancho.

Belv. But then the little Gipfy is forgot?

Will. A Mischief on thee for putting her into my Thoughts; I had quite forgot her else, and this Night's Debauch had drunk her quite down.

Hell. Had it so, good Captain? [Claps bim on the Back.

Will. Ha! I hope she did not hear.

Hell. What afraid of fuch a Champion?

Will. Oh! You're a fine Lady of your Word, are you not? To make a Man languish a whole Day—

Hell. In tedious Search of me.

Will. Egad, Child, thou'rt in the Right; hadft thou feen what a melancholy Dog I have been ever fince I was a Lover, how I have walk'd the Streets like a Capuchin, with my Hands in my Sleeves—Faith, Sweetheart, thou wouldft pity me.

Hell. Now if I should be hang'd, I can't be angry with him, he dissembles so heartily——Alas, good Captain, what Pains you have taken——Now were I ungrateful not to reward fo true a Servant.

Will. Poor Soul! That's kindly faid, I see thou bearest a Conscience—Come then for a Beginning shew me thy dear Face.

Hell. I'm afraid, my small Acquaintance, you have been staying that swinging Stomach you boasted of this Morning; I remember then my little Collation would have gone down with you, without the Sauce of a handsome Face— Is your Stomach so queasy now?

Will. Faith, long fasting, Child, spoils a Man's Appetite—yet if you durst treat, I could so lay about me still.

Hell. And would you fall to, before a Priest fays

Will. Oh fie, fie, what an old out-of-fashion'd thing hast thou nam'd? Thou cou'dst not dash me more out of Countenance, shouldst thou shew me an ugly Face.

Whilft he is seemingly courting Hellena, enter Angelica, Moretta, Biskey, and Sebastian, all in Masquerade:

Angelica sees Willmore and starts.

Ang. Heavens, is't he? And passionately fond to see

Moret. What cou'd you expect less from such a Swag-

Ang. Expect! As much as I paid him, a Heart intire, which I had Pride enough to think when e'er I gave, it should have rais'd the Man above the Vulgar, made him all Soul, and that all foft and constant.

Hell. You see, Captain, how willing I am to be Friends with you, till Time and Ill-luck make us Lovers; and ask you the Question first, rather than put your Modesty to the blush by asking me: For alas, I know you Captains are such strict Men, severe Observers of your Vows to Chastity, that 'twill be hard to prevail with your tender Conscience to marry a young willing Maid.

Will. Do not abuse me, for fear I should take thee atthy Word, and marry thee indeed, which I'm sure will be Revenge sufficient.

Hell. O' my Conscience that will be our Destiny, because we are both of one Humour; I am as inconstant as you, for I have considered, Captain, that a handsome Woman has a great deal to do whilst her Face is good, for then is our Harvest-time to gather Friends; and should I in these Days of my Youth, catch a fit of soolish Constancy, I were undone; 'tis loitering by Day-light in our great Journey: Therefore declare, I'll allow but one Year for Love, one Year for Indisference, and one Year for Hate—and then—go hang yourself—for I profess myself the Gay, the Kind, and the Inconstant—the Devil's in't if this won't please you.

Will. Oh most damnably !-- I have a Heart with a Hole quite thro' it too, no Prison like mine to keep a Mi-Arefs in 2 a orelad for the way Telgow Lul

Ang. Perjur'd Man! How I believe thee now! he, he what an old our of history at there

Afide.

Hell. Well, I fee our Bufiness as well as Humours are alike, yours to cozen as many Maids as will trust you, and I as many Men as have Faith——See if I have not as defperate a lying Look, as you can have for the Heart of you.

[Pulls off her Vizard; he farts.

How do you like it, Captain?

Will. Like it! By Heav'n, I never faw fo much Beauty. Oh the Charms of those sprightly black Eyes, that strangely fair Face, full of Smiles and Dimples! Those fost round melting cherry Lips! And fmall even white Teeth! Not to be express'd, but filently adored ! - Oh one Look more, and strike me dumb, or I shall repeat nothing else till I am mad.

[He seems to court ber to full off ber Vizard: She refuses. Ang. I can endure no more—nor is it fit to interrupt him; for if I do, my Jealousy has so destroy'd my Reason-I shall undo him-Therefore I'll retire. And you Sebastian [To one of her Bravoes] follow that Woman, and learn who 'tis; while you tell the Fugitive I would speak to him instantly. To the other Bravo. [Exit.

This while Flor. is talking to Belvile, who stands fullenly. Fred. courting Valeria.

Val. Prithee, dear Stranger, be not fo fullen; for tho' you have loft your Love, you fee my Friend frankly offers you hers to play with in the mean Time.

Belv. Faith, Madam, I am forry I can't play at her Game. Fred. Pray leave your Intercession; and mind your own Affair, they'll better agree apart; he's a modest Sigher in Company, but alone no Woman escapes him.

Flor. Sure he does but rally—yet if it should be true—I'll tempt him farther—Believe me, noble Stranger, I'm no common Mistress—and for a little Proof on't on't——wear this Jewel——nay, take it, Sir, 'tis right, and Bills of Exchange may fometimes miscarry.

Belv. Madam, why am I chose out of all Mankind to be the Object of your Bounty?

Val. There's another civil Question ask'd.

Fred. Pox of's Modesty, it spoils his own Market, and hinders mine.

Flor. Sir, from my Window I have often seen you; and Women of Quality have so few Opportunities for Love, that we ought to lose none.

Belv. You tempt me strangely, Madam, every Way. Flor. So, if I find him false, my whole Repose is gone.

Belv. And but for a Vow I've made to a very fine Lady, this Goodness had subdu'd me.

Fred. Pox on't be kind, in Pity to me be kind, for I am to thrive here but as you treat her Friend.

Hell. Tell me what did you in yonder House, and I'll unmasque.

Will. Yonder House—Oh—I went to a—a—to—Why there's a Friend of mine lives there.

Hell. What a She, or a He Friend.

Will. A Man upon my Honour! A Man——A She Friend! No, no, Madam, you have done my Bufiness, I thank you.

Hell. And was't your Man Friend, that had more Darts in's Eyes than Cupid carries in's whole Budget of Arrows?

Man Friend too?

Hell. That gave you the He and the She-Gold, that begets young Pleafures.

Will. Well, well, Madam, then you see there are Ladies in the World, that will not be cruel—There are, Madam, there are Hell. And there be Men too as fine, wild, inconstant Fellows as yourself, there be Captain, there be, if you go to that now——Therefore I'm resolv'd———

Will. Oh!

Hell. To fee your Face no more

Will. Oh!

Hell. 'Till To-morrow.

Will. Egad you frighted me.

Hell. Nor then neither, unless you'll swear never to see that Lady more.

Will. See her !- Why! Never to think of Woman-kind again.

Hell. Kneel, and fwear. [Kneels, she gives him ber Hand, Will. I do, never to think—to see—to love—nor lie with any but thyself.

Hell. Kiss the Book.

Will. Oh most religiously. [Kiffes her Hand.

Hell. Now what a wicked Creature am I, to damn a proper Fellow.

Call. Madam, I'll stay no longer, 'tis e'en dark. [To Flor. Flor. However, Sir, I'll leave this with you——That when I'm gone, you may repent the Opportunity you have lost by your Modesty, [Gives bim the Jewel, which is [ber Picture, and Ex. be gazes after ber.

Belv. Ha! Florinda's Picture! 'Twas she her self-What a dull Dog was I? I would have given the World for one Minute's Discourse with her

Fred. This comes of your Modesty—Ah pox on your Vow, 'twas ten to one but we had lost the Jewel by't.

Belv. Willmore! The bleffed'st Opportunity lost!-

Florinda, Friends, Florinda!

Will. Ah Rogue! Such black Eyes, fuch a Face, fuch a Mouth, fuch Teeth—and so much Wit.

Belv. All, all, and a thousand Charms besides.

Will. Why doft thou know her?

Belv. Know her! Ay, ay, and a Pox take me with all my Heart for being modelt.

Will.

Will. But hark ye, Friend of mine, are you my Rival? and have I been only beating the Bush all this while?

Belv. I understand thee not—I'm mad—See here——

Will. Ha! Whose Picture is this? Tis a fine Wench.

Fred. The Colonel's Mistress, Sir.

Will. Oh, oh, here——I thought it had been another Prize——Come, come, a Bottle will fet thee right again.

[Gives the Picture back.

Belv. I am content to try, and by that Time 'twill be late enough for our Design.

Will. Agreed.

Love does all Day the Soul's great Empire keep, But Wine at Night lulls the foft God afleep.

S C E N E II. Lucetta's House.

Enter Blunt and Lucetta with a Light.

Luc. Now we are fafe and free, no Fears of the coming Home of my old jealous Husband, which made me a little thoughtful when you came in first——but now Love is all the Business of my Soul.

Blunt. I am transported—Pox on't, that I had but fome fine Things to say to her, such as Lovers use—I was a Fool not to learn of Fred. a little by heart before I came—Something I must say—[Aside. Sheartlikins, sweet Soul, I am not us'd to compliment, but I'm an honest Gentleman, and thy humble Servant.

Luc. I have nothing to pay for so great a Favour, but such a Love as cannot but be great, since at first Sight of that sweet Face and Shape it made me your absolute Captive.

Blunt. Kind Heart, how prettily she talks! Egad I'll shew her Husband a Spanish Trick; send him out of the World and marry her: She's damnably in Love with me, and will ne'er mind Settlements, and so there's that sav'd. [Aside.

Luc. Well, Sir, I'll go and undress me, and be with you instantly.

Blunt. Make haste then, for 'Sheartlikins, dear Soul, thou thou can'ft not guess at the Pain of a longing Lover, when his Joys are drawn within the Compass of a few Minutes.

Luc. You speak my Sense, and I'll make haste to provide it.

Blunt. 'Tis a rare Girl, and this one Night's Enjoyment with her will be worth all the Days I ever pass'd in Essex—Would she go with me into England, tho' to say Truth, there's Plenty of Whores there already—But a Pox on 'em, they are such mercenary prodigal Whores, that they want such a one as this, that's free and generous, to give 'em good Examples—Why, what a House she has! how rich and fine!

Sancho. Sir, my Lady has fent me to conduct you to her Chamber.

Blunt, Sir, I shall be proud to follow——Here's one of her Servants too: 'Sheartlikins, by his Garb and Gravity he might be a Justice of Peace in Essex, and is but a Pimp here.

[Exit.

The Scene changes to a Chamber with an Alcove-Bed in it, a Table, &c. Lucetta in Bed. Enter Sancho and Blunt, who takes the Candle of Sancho at the Door.

Sancho. Sir, my Commission reaches no farther.

Blunt. Sir, I'll excuse your Compliment—What in Bed my sweet Mistres?

Luc. You see, I still out-do you in Kindness.

Blunt. And thou shalt see what haste I'll make to quit Scores—Oh the luckiest Rogue! [Undresses himself.

Luc. Shou'd you be false or cruel now !

Blunt, False, 'Sheartlikins, what dost thou take me for a Jew? An insensible Heathen—A Pox of thy old jealous Husband: And he were dead, egad, sweet Soul, it shou'd be none of my Fault, if I did not marry thee.

Luc. It never shou'd be mine.

Blunt. Good Soul, I'm the fortunatest Dog!

Luc. Are you not undress'd yet?

Blunt. As much as my impatience will permit.

[Goes towards the Bed in his Shirt and Drawers. Luc. Hold, Sir, put out the Light, it may betray us else.

Blunt. Any thing, I need no other Light but that of thine Eyes!—'Sheartlikins, there I think I had it. [Afide. [Puts out the Candle, the Bed descends, he gropes about to find it.

where are you Sweetest? ah, the Rogue's silent now—a pretty Love Trick this—how she'll laugh at me anon!
—you need not, my dear Rogue! you need not! I'm all on a Fire already—come, come, now call me in for Pity—Sure I'm enchanted! I have been round the Chamber, and can find neither Woman, nor Bed—I lock'd the Door, I'm sure she cannot go that Way; or if she cou'd, the Bed cou'd not—Enough, enough, my pretty Wanton, do not carry the Jest too far,—Ha, betray'd! Dogs! Rogues! Imps! help! help!

Lights on a Trap, and is let down.

Enter Lucetta, Philippo, and Sancho with a Light. Phil. Ha, ha, ha, he's dispatch'd finely.

Luc. Now, Sir, had I been coy, we had mis'd of this Booty.

Phil. Nay, when I saw 'twas a substantial Fool, I was mollissed; but when you doat upon a Serenading Coxcomb, upon a Face, fine Clothes, and a Lute, it makes me rage.

Luc. You know I never was guilty of that Folly, my dear Philippo, but with yourself—But come let's fee what we have got by this.

Phil. A rich Coat!—Sword and Hat!—these Breeches too—are well lin'd!—fee here a Gold Watch! a Purse—ha! Gold!—at least two hundred Pistoles! a Bunch of Diamond Rings; and one with the Family Arms!—a Gold Box!—with a Medal of his King! and his Lady Mother's Picture!—these were facred Relicks, believe me!—fee the Wasteband of his Breeches have a Mine of Gold!—Old Queen Ress. We have a Quarrel to her ever fince Eighty Eight, and may therefore justify the Thest, the Inquisition might have committed it.

Luc. See, a Bracelet of bow'd Gold, these his Sister ty'd about his Arm at parting—but well—for all this, I fear I fear his being a Stranger may make a Noise, and hinder our Trade with them hereafter.

Luc. And art not thou an unmerciful Rogue, not to afford him one Night for all this?———— I should not have been fuch a Jew.

Phil. Blame me not Lucetta to keep as much of thee as I can to myself——come, that Thought makes me wanton—let's to Bed,——Sancha, lock up these:

This is the Fleece which Fools do bear, Design'd for witty Men to share. [Excunt.

The Scene changes, and discovers Blunt, creeping out of a Common Shore, his Face, &c. all dirty.

Blunt. Oh Lord! [Climbing up. I am got out at last, and (which is a Miracle) without a Clue—and now to Damning and Curfing,—but if that would ease me, where shall I begin? with my Fortune, myself, or the Quean that cozen'd me-What a Dog was I to believe in Women! Oh Coxcombignorant conceited Coxcomb! to fanfy she cou'd be enamour'd with my Person, at the first Sight enamour'd-Oh, I'm a curfed Puppy, 'tis plain, Fool was writ upon my Forehead, she perceiv'd it, faw the Essex Calf there—for what Allurements could there be in this Countenance? which I can endure, because I'm acquainted with it-Oh, dull filly Dog! to be thus footh'd into a Cozening! Had I been drunk, I might fondly have credited the young Quean! but as I was in my right Wits, to be thus cheated, confirms I am a dull believing English Country Fop.—But my Comrades! Death and the Devil, there's the worst of all-then a Ballad will be fung To-morrow on the Prado, to a loufy Tune of the Enchanted Enchanted 'Squire, and the Annihilated Damsel—But Fred. that Rogue, and the Colonel, will abuse me beyond all Christian Patience—had she lest me my Clothes, I have a Bill of Exchange at Home wou'd have sav'd my Credit—but now all Hope is taken from me—Well, I'll Home (if I can find the Way) with this Consolation, that I am not the first kind believing Coxcomb; but there are, Gallants, many such good Natures amongst ye.

And the you've better Arts to bide your Follies, 'Sheartlikins y' are all as errant Cullies.

SCENE, The Garden, in the Night.

Enter Florinda undress'd, with a Key and a little Box.

Flor. Well, thus far I'm in my way to Happines; I have got myself free from Callis; my Brother too, I find by yonder Light, is got into his Cabinet, and thinks not of me: I have by good Fortune got the Key of the Garden Back-door,——I'll open it, to prevent Belvile's knocking, a little Noise will now alarm my Brother.

Now am I as fearful as a young Thief. [Unlocks the Door.]
——Hark,——what Noise is that?——Oh, 'twas the Wind that play'd amongst the Boughs—Belvile stays long, methinks——it's time——stay——for fear of a Surprize, I'll hide these Jewels in yonder Jessamin.

[She goes to lay down the Box.

Enter Willmore drunk.

Will. What the Devil is become of these Fellows, Belvile and Frederick? They promis'd to stay at the next Corner for me; but who the Devil knows the Corner of a full Moon?—Now—whereabouts am I? hah—what have we here? a Garden! a very convenient Place to sleep in—hah—what has God sent us here? a Female—by this Light, a Woman, I'm a Dog if it be not a very Wench.

Flor. He's come!——hah——who's there? Will. Sweet Soul, let me falute thy Shoe-string.

Flor. 'Tis not my Belvile good Heavens, I know him not. Who are you, and from whence come you?

Will. Prithee—prithee Child—not so many hard Questions—let it suffice I am here, Child—Come, come kiss me.

Flor. Good God! what Luck is mine.

Will. Only good Luck, Child, parlous good Luck.—
Come hither,—'tis a delicate shining Wench,—by this Hand she's persum'd, and smells like any Nosegay.—
Prithee, dear Soul, let's not play the Fool, and lose Time, —precious Time—for as Gad shall save me, I'm as honest a Fellow as breathes, tho' I'm a little disguis'd at present.—Come, I say—why, thou mayst be free with me, I'll be very secret. I'll not boast who 'twas oblig'd me, not I—for hang me, if I know thy Name.

Flor. Heavens! what a filthy Beaft is this!

Will. I am so, and thou oughtst the sooner to lie with me for that Reason,—for look you Child, there will be no Sin in't, because 'twas neither design'd nor premeditated; 'tis pure Accident on both Sides—that's a certain Thing now—Indeed should I make Love to you, and you vow Fidelity, and swear and lye 'till you believ'd and yielded—Thou art therefore (as thou art a good Christian) oblig'd in Conscience to deny me nothing. Now—come, be kind, without any more idle Prating.

Flor. Oh, I am ruin'd—wicked Man, unhand me. Will. Wicked! Egad Child, a Judge, were he young and vigorous, and faw those Eyes of thine, would know 'twas they gave the first Blow—the first Provocation.—Come, prithee let's lose no Time, I say—this is a fine convenient Place.

Flor. Sir, let me go, I conjure you, or I'll call out.

Will. Ay, ay, you were best to call Witness, to see how finely you treat me-do.

Flor. I'll cry Murder, Rape, or any Thing, if you do not instantly let me go.

Will. A Rape! Come, come, you lye you Baggage, you lye: What, I'll warrant you would fain have the World believe now that you are not so forward as I. No, not you,—why at this time of Night was your Cobwebdoor set open, dear Spider—but to catch Flies?——Hah

Hah come—or I shall be damnably angry.—Why what a Coil is here—

Flor. Sir, can you think

Will. That you'd do it for nothing? oh, oh, I find what you'd be at,—look here, here's a Pistole for youhere's a Work indeed—here—take it, I say.——

Flor. For Heavens fake, Sir, as you're a Gentleman—
Will. So—now—she would be wheedling me for more—what you will not take it then—you're refolv'd you will not.—Come, come, take it, or I'll put it up again; for look ye, I never give more.—Why, how now Mistress, are you so high i'th' Mouth, a Pistole won't down with you?—hah?—why, what a Work's here—in good time, come, no struggling, be gone—But an y'are good at a dumb Wrestle, I'm for ye,—look ye,—I'm for ye.—[She struggles with bim.

Enter Belvile and Frederick.

Belv. The Door is open, a Pox of this mad Fellow.

I'm angry that we've lost him, I durst have sworn he had follow'd us.

Fred. But you were so hasty, Colonel, to be gone.

Flor. Help, help, Murder! help oh, I'm ruin'd.

Belv. Ha, fure that's Florinda's Voice.

[Comes up to them.

A Man! Villain let go that Lady. [A Noise. [Will. turns and draws, Fred. interposes.

Flor. Belvile! Heavens! my Brother too is coming, and 'twill be impossible to escape.—Belvile, I conjure you to walk under my Chamber-window, from whence I'll give you some Instructions what to do—This rude Man has undone us.

Will. Belvile!

Enter Pedro, Stephano, and other Servants with Lights.

Ped. I'm betray'd; run Stephano, and see if Florinda be safe.

[Exit Steph. So whoever they be, all is not well, I'll to Florinda's Chamber.

[They fight, and Pedro's Party beats'em out; going out, meets Stephano.

Stepk. You need not, Sir, the poor Lady's fast asleep, and thinks no harm: I wou'd not awake her, Sir, for fear of frightning her with your Danger.

Ped. I'm glad she's there Rascals how came the Garden-Door open?

Steph. That Question comes too late, Sir, some of my Fellow-Servants Masquerading I'll warrant.

Youth—there's formething more in this than I imagine.

SCENE changes to the Street.

Enter Belvile in Rage, Fred. bolding bim, and Willmore melancholy.

Will. Why, how the Devil shou'd I know Florinda?

Will. Well, Sir, ye fee I'm endu'd with Patience——
I can bear—tho' Egad ye're very free with me methinks,
—I was in good hopes the Quarrel wou'd have been on my Side, for so uncivilly interrupting me.

Belv. Peace, Brute, whilst thou'rt safe——oh I'm distracted.

Will. Nay, nay, I'm an unlucky Dog, that's certain.

Belv. A curse upon the Star that rul'd my Birth! or whatsoever other Influence that makes me still so wretched.

Will. Thou break'st my Heart with these Complaints; there is no Star in fault, no Influence but Sack, the cursed Sack I drank.

Bev. Why, how the Devil came you so drunk?

Will. Why, how the Devil came you fo fober?

Belo. A curse upon his thin Skull, he was always before-hand that Way.

Fred. Prithee, dear Colonel, forgive him, he's forry for his Fault.

Belv. He's always so after he has done a Mischies—a Plague on all such Brutes.

Will.

Will. By this Light I took her for an errant Harlot.

Belv. Damn your debauch'd Opinion: Tell me, Sot, hadst thou so much Sense and Light about thee to distinguish her to be a Woman, and could't not see something about her Face and Person, to strike an awful Reverence into thy Soul?

Will. Faith no, I consider'd her as mere a Woman as I cou'd wish.

Belv. 'Sdeath I have no Patience-draw, or I'll kill you.

Will. Let that alone 'till To-morrow, and if I set not all right again, use your Pleasure.

Belv. To-morrow, damn it,

The spiteful Light will lead me to no Happiness.

To-morrow is Antonio's, and perhaps

Guides him to my Undoing;—oh that I could meet This Rival, this powerful Fortunate.

Will. What then?

Belv. Let thy own Reason, or my Rage instruct thee.

Belv. I know him no more than thou, or if I did, I should not need thy Aid.

Will. This you say is Angelica's House, I promis'd the kind Baggage to lie with her To-night.

Enter Antonio and his Page. Ant. knocks on the Hilt of his Sword.

Ant You paid the thousand Crowns I directed?

Page. To the Lady's old Woman, Sir, I did.

Will. Who the Devil have we here?

Belv. I'll now plant myself under Florinda's Window, and if I find no comfort there, I'll die.

[Ex. Belv. and Fred.

Enter Moretta.

Moret. Page!

Will. How is this, a Picaroon going to board my Frigate! Here's one Chase-Gun for you.

[Drawing bis Sword, justles Ant. who turns and draws. They fight, Ant. falls.

Moret. Oh, bless us, we are all undone!

[Runs in, and sbuts the Door.

Belvile returns at the Noise of Fighting. Belv. Ha, the mad Rogue's engag'd in some unlucky Adventure again.

Enter two or three Masqueraders.

Masq. Ha, a Man kill'd!

Will. How! A Man kill'd! Then I'll go home to sleep.

[Puts up, and reels out. Exit Masquers another way.

Belv. Who shou'd it be! Pray Heaven the Rogue is fafe, for all my Quarrel to him.

[As Belvile is groping about, enter an Officer and fix Soldiers.

Sold. Who's there?

Offic. So, here's one dispatch'd-secure the Murderer.

Belv. Do not mistake my Charity for Murder:

I came to his Affistance. [Soldiers feize on Belvile.

Offic. That shall be tried, Sir.—St. Jago, Swords drawn in the Carnival Time! [Goes to Antonio.

Ant. Thy Hand prithee.

Offic. Ha, Don Antonio! Look well to the Villain there.—How is't, Sir?

Ant. I'm hurt.

Belv. Has my Humanity made me a Criminal?

Offic. Away with him.

Belv. What a curs'd Chance is this!

[Exit Soldiers with Belvile.

Ant. This is the Man that has fet upon me twice—carry him to my Apartment till you have farther Orders from me.

[To the Officer. Exit Ant. led.

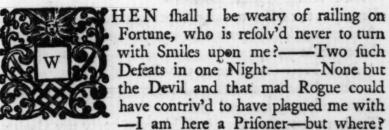

ACT IV. SCENE I.

A fine Room.

Discovers Belvile, as by Dark, alone.

Belvile.

Heaven knows,—and if there be Murder done, I can foon decide the Fate of a Stranger in a Nation without Mercy—Yet this is nothing to the Torture my Soul bows with, when I think of losing my fair, my dear Florinda—Hark—my Door opens—a Light—a Man—and seems of Quality—arm'd too.—Now shall I die like a Dog without Desence.

[Enter Antonio in a Night-Gown, with a Light; his Arm in a Searf, and a Sword under his Arm: He sets the Candle on the Table.

Ant. Sir, I come to know what Injuries I have done you, that could provoke you to so mean an Action, as to attack me basely, without allowing Time for my Defence.

Belv. Sir, for a Man in my Circumstance to plead Innocence, would look like Fear—but view me well, and you will find no Marks of a Coward on me, nor any thing that betrays that Brutality you accuse me of.

Ant. In vain, Sir, you impose upon my Sense, You are not only he who drew on me last Night, But Yesterday before the same House, that of Angelica. Yet there is something in your Face and Mien Belv. I own I fought To-day in the Defence of a Friend of mine, with whom you (if you're the fame) and your Party were first engag'd.

Perhaps you think this Crime enough to kill me, But if you do, I cannot fear you'll do it basely.

Ant. No, Sir, I'll make you fit for a Defence with this. [Gives him the Sword.

Belv. This Gallantry surprizes me___nor know I how to use this Present, Sir, against a Man so brave.

Ant. You shall not need;

For know, I come to fnatch you from a Danger

That is decreed against you; Perhaps your Life, or long Imprisonment:
And 'twas with so much Courage you offended,

I cannot see you punish'd.

Belv. How shall I repay this Generosity?

Ant. It had been fafer to have kill'd another,

Than to have attempted me:

To shew your Danger, Sir, I'll let you know my Quality; And 'tis the Vice-Roy's Son whom you have wounded.

Belv. The Vice-Roy's Son!

Death and Confusion! Was this Plague reserved
To compleat all the rest?——oblig'd by him!
The Man of all the World I wou'd destroy.

[Aside.

Ant. You seem disorder'd, Sir.

Belv. Yes, trust me, Sir, I am, and 'tis with Pain That Man receives such Bounties,

Who wants the Power to pay 'em back again.

Ant. To gallant Spirits 'tis indeed uneasy;

But you may quickly over-pay me, Sir.

Belv. Then I am well—kind Heaven! But set us even, That I may fight with him, and keep my Honour safe.

Oh, I'm impatient, Sir, to be discounting

The mighty Debt I owe you; command me quickly

Ant. I have a Quarrel with a Rival, Sir,

About the Maid we love.

Afide.

Ant. My Rival, Sir,

Is one has all the Virtues Man can boaft of.

Belv. Death! Who should this be?

Ant. He challeng'd me to meet him on the Mole As foon as Day appear'd; but last Night's Quarrel Has made my Arm unsit to guide a Sword.

Belv. I apprehend you, Sir, you'd have me kill the Man

That lays a Claim to the Maid you speak of.

I'll do't——I'll fly to do it.

Ant. Sir, do you know her?

Belv. - No, Sir, but 'tis enough fhe is admired by you.

Ant. Sir, I shall rob you of the Glory on't, For you must fight under my Name and Dress.

Belv. That Opinion must be strangely obliging, that makes you think I can personate the brave Antonio, whom I can but strive to imitate.

Ant. You say too much to my Advantage. Come, Sir, the Day appears that calls you forth.

Within, Sir, is the Habit. [Exit Antonio.

Belv. Fantastick Fortune, thou deceitful Light,
That cheats the wearied Traveller by Night,
Tho' on a Precipice each Step you tread,
I am resolv'd to follow were you lead.

SCENE The Mole.

Enter Florinda and Callis in Masques, with Stephano. Flor. I'm dying with my Fears, Belvile's not coming,

As I expected, underneath my Window,

Makes me believe that all those Fears are true.

Aside.

Canst thou not tell with whom my Brother fights? Steph. No, Madam, they were both in Masquerade, I was by when they challeng'd one another, and they had decided the Quarrel then, but were prevented by some Cavaliers; which made 'em put it off till now—but I am sure 'tis about you they fight.

Flor. Nay, then 'tis with Belvile, for what other Lover have I that dares fight for me, except Antonio? and he is too much in favour with my Brother——If it be he, for whom shall I direct my Prayers to Heaven?

C 6

Stepb.

Steph. Madam, I must leave you: For if my Master see me, I shall be hang'd for being your Conductor,escap'd narrowly for the Excuse I made for you last Night i'th' Garden.

Flor. And I'll reward thee for't--prithee no more. Exit Steph.

Enter Don Pedro in his Masque Habit.

Ped. Antonio's late To-day, the Place will fill, and we may be prevented. Walks about. [Afide.

Flor. Antonio! Sure I heard amis.

Ped. But who wou'd not excuse a happy Lover, When foft fair Arms confine the yielding Neck; And the kind Whisper languishingly breathes, Must you be gone so soon?

Sure I had dwelt for ever on her Bosom. -But stay, he's here.

Enter Belvile dress'd in Antonio's Clothes.

Flor. 'Tis not Belvile, half my Fears are vanish'd.

Ped. Antonio!-

Belo. This must be he. Aside.

You're early, Sir, I do not use to be out-done this Way. Ped. The Wretched, Sir, are watchful, and 'tis enough

You have the Advantage of me in Angelica

Belv. Angelica! Or I've mistook my Man! Or else Antonio,

Can he forget his Interest in Florinda,

[Afide. And fight for common Prize?

Ped. Come, Sir, you know our Terms

[Afide. Belv. By Heaven, not I.

-No talking, I am ready, Sir.

[Offers to fight, Flor. runs in. Flor. Oh, hold! Whee'er you be, I do conjure you hold. To Belv.

Ped. Florinda!

Belv. Florinda imploring for my Rival! Ped. Away, this Kindness is unseasonable.

[Puts ber by, they fight; she runs in just as Belv. disarms Pedro.

Flor. Who are you, Sir, that dare deny my Prayers?

Belv. Thy Prayers destroy him; if thou wouldst pre-

Do that thou'rt unacquainted with, and curse him.

[She bolds bim.

Flor. By all you hold most dear, by her you love, I do conjure you, touch him not.

Belv. By her I love?

See ____ I obey ____ and at your Feet refign

The useless Trophy of my Victory.

[Lays bis Sword at ber Feet.

Ped. Antonio, you've done enough to prove you love Florinda.

Belv. Love Florinda!

Does Heaven love Adoration, Pray'r, or Penitence?

Love her! Here, Sir, your Sword again.

[Snatches up the Sword, and gives it him.

Upon this Truth I'll fight my Life away.

Ped. No, you've redeem'd my Sister, and my Friendship!

Betv. Don Pedro!

[He gives bim Flor. and pulls off his Vizard to shew his Face, and puts it on again.

Ped. Can you refign your Claims to other Women,

And give your Heart intirely to Florinda?

Belv. Intire, as dying Saints Confessions are.

I can delay my Happiness no longer.

This Minute let me make Florinda mine?

Ped. This Minute let it be _____ no Time fo proper,

This Night my Father will arrive from Rome, And possibly may hinder what we propose.

Flor. Oh Heavens! This Minute!

[Enter Masqueraders, and pass over.

Belv. Oh, do not ruin me!

Ped. 'The Place begins to fill; and that we may not be observ'd, do you walk off to St. Peter's Church, where I will meet you, and conclude your Happiness.

Belv. I'll meet you there——if there be no more Saints Churches in Naples.

[Afide.

Flor. Oh stay, Sir, and recall your hasty Doom:

Alas, I have not yet prepar'd my Heart To entertain fo strange a Guest. Ped. Away, this filly Modesty is assum'd too late.

Belv. Heaven, Madam! What do you do?

Flor. Do! Despise the Man that lays a Tyrant's Claim. To what he ought to conquer by Submission.

Belv. You do not know me-move a little this Way.

[Draws ber afide.

Flor. Yes, you may even force me to the Altar, But not the holy Man that offers there Shall force me to be thine.

[Pedro talks to Callis this while.

See—'tis your Belvile—not Antonio,
Whom your mistaken Scorn and Anger ruins.

[Pulls off bis Vizard.

Flor. Belvile!

Where was my Soul it cou'd not meet thy Voice, And take this Knowledge in?

[As they are talking, enter Willmore finely dress'd, and Frederick.

Will. No Intelligence! No News of Belvile yet—well I am the most unlucky Rascal in Nature—ha!—am I deceiv'd—or is it he—look.

Fred. _____ Tis he, ____ my dear Belvile.

[Vizard falls out on's Hand, runs and embraces bim.

Belv. Hell and Confusion seize thee!

Ped. Ha! Belvile! I beg your Pardon, Sir.

[Takes Flor. from bim.

Belv. Nay, touch her not, she's mine by Conquest, Sir. I won her by my Sword.

Will. Did'ft thou so—and Egad, Child, we'll keep her by the Sword. [Draws on Pedro, Belv. goes between. Belv. Stand off.

Thou'rt fo profanely leud, so curs'd by Heaven, All Quarrels thou espousest must be fatal.

Will. Nay, and you be so hot, my Valour's coy, and shall be courted when you want it next.

Belv. You know I ought to claim a Victor's Right, [To Pedro.

But you're the Brother to divine Florinda,

To whom I'm such a Slave—to purchase her, I durst not hurt the Man she holds so dear.

Ped. 'Twas by Antonio's, not by Belvile's Sword,
This Question should have been decided, Sir:
I must confess much to your Bravery's due,
Both now, and when I met you last in Arms.
But I am nicely punctual in my Word,
As Men of Honour ought, and beg your Pardon.

But I'll prevent you. [Afide to Flor. as they are going out. [Belv. looks after her, and begins to walk up and down in a Rage.

For this Mistake another Time shall clear.

Will. Do not be modest now, and lose the Woman:

Belv. Do not speak to me.

Will. Not speak to you!——Egad I'll speak to you, and will be answered too.

Belv. Will you, Sir?

Will. I know I have done fome Mischief, but Pm so dull a Puppy, that I am the Son of a Whore, if I know how, or where—prithee inform my Understanding.—

Belv. Leave me I fay, and leave me instantly.

Will. I will not leave you in this Humour, nor till I know my Crime.

Behv. Death, I'll tell you, Sir-

[Draws and runs at Will. he runs out; Belv. after him, Fred. interposes.

Enter Angelica, Moretta, and Sebastian.

Ang. Ha——Schaftian——Is not that Willmore? haste, haste, and bring him back.

Fred. The Colonel's mad—I never faw him thus before; I'll after him lest he do some Mischief, for I am fure Willmore will not draw on him.

[Exit.

Ang. I am all Rage! My first Desires descated for one, for ought he knows, that has no other Merit than her Quality,—her being Don Pedro's Sister—He loves her: I know 'tis so—dust, dull, insensible—

He will not fee me now tho' oft invited;

And broke his Word last Night-false perjur'd Man!

—He that but Yesterday sought for my Favours, And would have made his Life a Sacrifice To've gain'd one Night with me, Must now be hired and courted to my Arms.

Moret. I told you what wou'd come on't, but Moretta's an old doating Fool——Why did you give him five hundred Crowns, but to fet himself out for other Lovers? You shou'd have kept him poor, if you had meant to have had any Good from him.

Ang. Oh, name not such mean Trisses—
Had I given him all my Youth has earn'd from Sin,
I had not lost a Thought nor Sigh upon't;
But I have given him my eternal Rest,
My whole Repose, my future Joys, my Heart,
My Virgin Heart: Moretta! Oh, tis gone!
Moret. Curse on him, here he comes;

How fine she has made him too!

Enter Willmore and Sebast. Ang. turns and walks away.
Will. How now, turn'd Shadow?

Fly when I purfue, and follow when I fly!

Stay, gentle Shadow of my Dove,
And tell me'ere I go,
Whether the Substance may not prove
A fleeting Thing like you.

There's a foft kind Look remaining yet.

Ang. Well, Sir, you may be gay; all Happiness, all Joys pursue you still; Fortune's your Slave, and gives you every Hour Choice of new Heats and Beauties, till you are cloy'd with the repeated Bliss, which others vainly languish for—But know, false Man, that I shall be reveng'd.

[Turns away in a Rage.

Will. So, 'gad, there are of those faint-hearted Lovers, whom such a sharp Lesson next their Hearts would make as impotent as Fourscore—pox o' this Whining—my Business is to laugh and love—a pox on't; I hate your sullen Lover, a Man shall lose as much Time to put you in Humour now, as would serve to gain a new Woman.

Ang.

[Sings.

Ang. I fcorn to cool that Fire I cannot raise, Or do the Drudgery of your virtuous Mistress.

Will. A virtuous Mistress! Death, what a Thing thou hast found out for me! Why, what the Devil should I do with a virtuous Woman?——A Sort of ill-natur'd Creatures, that take a Pride to torment a Lover. Virtue is but an Infirmity in Women, a Disease that renders even the handsome ungrateful; whilst the ill-savour'd, for want of Solicitations and Address, only fancy themselves so———I have laid with a Woman of Quality, who has all the while been railing at Whores.

Ang. I will not answer for your Mistress's Virtue, Tho' she be young enough to know no Guilt:
And I could wish you would persuade my Heart, 'Twas the two hundred thousand Crowns you courted.

Will. Two hundred thousand Crowns! What Story's this?—What Trick?—What Woman?—Ha?

Ang. How strange you make it! Have you forgot the Creature you entertain'd on the Piazza last Night?

Will. Ha, my Gipfy worth two hundred thousand Crowns!—Oh how I long to be with her—Pox I long to be with her.

[Aside.

Ang. False Man, I see my Ruin in thy Face. How many Vows you breath'd upon my Bosom, Never to be unjust——have you forgot so soon?

Will. Faith no, I was just coming to repeat 'em—but here's a Humour indeed—would make a Man a Saint—Wou'd she'd be angry enough to leave me, and command me not to wait on her.

[Aside.

Enter Hellena, dress'd in Man's Clothes.

Hell. This must be Angelica, I know it by her mumping Marron——Ay, ay, 'tis she: My mad Captain's with her too, for all his swearing——how this inconstant Humour makes me love him——Pray, good grave Gentlewoman, is not this Angelica?

Moret. My too young Sir, it is——I hope 'tis one from Don Antonio. [Goes to Angelica.

Hell. Well something I'll do to vex him for this. [Aside. Ang. I will not speak with him; am I in Humour to receive a Lover.

will. Not speak with him! Why I'll be gone and wait your idle Minutes—Can I shew less Obedience to the Thing I love so fondly?

[Offers to go.

Ang. A fine Excuse this flay-

Will. And hinder your Advantage: Should I repay your Bounties so ungratefully?

Ang. Come hither, Boy—that I may let you see
How much above the Advantages you name
I prize one Minute's joy with you.

Will. Oh, you destroy me with this Endearment.

[Impatient to be gone.

Death, how shall I get away?—Madam, it will not be fit I should be seen with you—besides, it will not be convenient—and I've a Friend—that's dangerously sick.

Ang. I fee you're impatient—yet you shall stay.

Will. And miss my Assignation with my Gipsy.

[Aside, and walks about impatiently.

Hell. Madam, [Moretta brings Hellena, who addresses You'll hardly pardon my Intrusion (berself to Angelica. When you shall know my Business;

And I'm too young to tell my Tale with Art:

But there must be a wondrous Store of Goodness.

Where fo much Beauty dwells, and I am I am I am I

Ang. A pretty Advocate, whoever fent thee.

Prithee, proceed—Nay, Sir, you shall not go.
[To Will. who is flealing off.

Will. Then shall I lose my dear Gipsy for ever.

Pox on't, she stays me out of Spite.

Hell. I am related to a Lady, Madam,
Young, rich, and nobly born, but has the Fate
To be in Love with a young English Gentleman.
Strangely she loves him, at first Sight she lov'd him,
But did adore him when she heard him speak;
For he, she said, had Charms in every Word,
That fail'd not to surprize, to wound, and conquer—

Will. Ha, Egad I hope this concerns me. [Afide. Ang. 'Tis my false Man, he means—wou'd he were gone. This Praise will raise his Pride and ruin me—Well, since you are so impatient to be gone, I will release you, Sir.

[To Will. Will.

Will y

Will. Nay, then I'm fure 'twas me he spoke of, this cannot be the Essects of Kindness in her.

[Aside.

No, Madam, I've consider'd better on't,

And will not give you Cause of Jealously.

Ang. But, Sir, I've Buliness, that

Will. This will not do, I know tis but to try me.

Ang. Well, to your Story, Boy-tho''twill undo me.

Hell. With this Addition to his other Beauties,
He won her unrefifting tender Heart,
He vow'd and figh'd, and fwore he lov'd her dearly;
And fhe believ'd the cunning Flatterer,
And thought herself the happiest Maid alive:
To-day was the appointed Time by both,
To consummate their Bliss;
The Virgin, Altar, and the Priest were dress'd,

The Virgin, Altar, and the Priest were dress'd, And whilst she languish'd for the expected Bridegroom,

She heard he paid his broken Vows to you.

Will. So, this is some dear Rogue that's in Love with me, and this way let's me know it; or if it be not me, she means some one whose place I may supply.

Ang. Now I perceive the Cause of thy Impatience to be gone, and all the Business of this glorious Dress,

Will. Damn the young Prater, I know not what he means.

Hell. Madam,

In your fair Eyes I read too much concern To tell my farther Business.

Ang. Prithee, sweet Youth talk on, thou may'st perhaps Raise here a Storm that may undo my Passion,

And then I'll grant thee any Thing.

Hell. Madam, 'tis to intreat you (Oh unreasonable!)
You wou'd not see this Stranger;

For if you do, the vows you are undone, Tho' Nature never made a Man so excellent;

Tho' Nature never made a Man to excellent; And fure he'd been a God, but for Inconstancy.

Will Ah, Rogue, how finely he's instructed! [Afide.

Tis plain, some Woman that has seen me en passam.

Ang. Oh, I shall burst with Jealousy! Do you know the Man you fpeak of?

Miss now Arr

CONTRACTOR OF STREET

Will. So, you have made sweet Work here, my little Mischief; look your Lady be kind and good-natur'd now, or I shall have but a cursed Bargain on't.

[Ang. turns towards them.

The Rogue's bred up to Mischief,
Art thou so great a Fool to credit him?

Ang. Yes, I do; and you in vain impose upon me—————————————————————Is not this he you speak of?

Hell. I think—it is; I cannot fwear, but I vow he has just such another lying Lover's Look.

[Hell. looks in bis Face, be gazes on ber.

Will. Hah, do I not know that Face?

By Heaven, my little Gipfy! What a dull Dog was I?

Had I but look'd that Way, I'd known her.

Are all my Hopes of a new Woman banish'd?

Egad, if I don't fit thee for this, hang me.

Madam, I have found out the Plot.

Hell. O Lord, what does he fay? Am I discover'd now?

Will. Do you fee this young Spark here?

Hell. He'll tell her who I am. Will. Who do you think this is?

Hell. Ay, ay, he does know me——Nay, dear Captain, I'm undone if you discover me.

Will. Nay, nay, no cogging; she shall know what a precious Mistress I have.

Hell. Will you be fuch a Devil.

Will. Nay, nay, I'll teach you to spoil Sport you will not make—This small Ambassador comes not from a Person of Quality, as you imagine, and he says; but from a very errant Gipsy, the talkingst, pratingst, cantingst little Animal thou ever saw'st.

Captain-hunting again—

[Afide.

Will. Mean that Thing? that Gipfy Thing? thou may'ft as well be jealous of thy Monkey, or Parrot as her; a German Motion were worth a Dozen of her, and a Dream were a better Enjoyment, a Creature of a Constitution fitter for Heaven than Man.

Hell. Tho' I am sure he lie, yet this vexes me. [Aside. Ang. You are mistaken, she's a Spanish Woman made up of no fuch dull Materials.

Will. Materials! Egad, an she be made of any that will either dispense, or admit of Love, I'll be bound to Continence.

Hell. Unreasonable Man, do you think so?

Afide to him.

Will. You may return, my little Brazen Head, and tell your Lady, that 'till she be handsome enough to be belov'd, or I dull enough to be religious, there will be but small Hopes of me.

Ang. Did you not promise then to marry her?

Will. Not I, by Heaven.

Ang. You cannot undeceive my Fears and Torments, 'till you have vow'd you will not marry her.

Hell. If he swears that, he'll be reveng'd on me indeed for all my Rogueries.

Ang. I know what Arguments you'll bring against me,

Fortune and Honour.

Will. Honour! I tell you, I hate it in your Sex; and those that fancy themselves possest of that Foppery, are the most impertinently troublesome of all Woman-kind, and will transgress nine Commandments to keep one: And to satisfy your Jealousy I swear—

Hell. Oh, no swearing, dear Captain - [Afide to him.

Will. If it were possible I should ever be inclin'd to marry, it should be some kind young Sinner, one that has Generosity enough to give a Favour handsomely to one that can ask it discreetly; one that has Wit enough to manage an Intrigue of Love——Oh, how civil such a Wench is, to a Man that does her the Honour to marry her.

Ang. By Heaven there's no Faith in any Thing he says.

Enter Sebastian.

Sebaft. Madam, Don Antonio-

Ang. Come hither.

Hell. Ha, Antonio! He may be coming hither, and he'll certainly discover me, I'll therefore retire without Ceremony.

[Exit. Hellena.

Ang. I'll fee him, get my Coach ready.

Sebaft.

Sebaft. It waits you, Madam.

Will. This is lucky: What, Madam, now I may be gone and leave you to the Enjoyment of my Rival?

Ang. Dull Man, thou can't not see how ill, how poor.
That small Diffimulation looks——Be gone,
And never let me see thy cozening Face again,
Let I relance and kill thee

Lest I relapse and kill thee.

Will. Yes, you can spare me now—Farewell 'till you are in better Humour—I'm glad of this Release—

Now for my Gipfy:

de ill

n-

For tho' to worse we change, yet still we find New Joys, new charms, in a new Miss that's kind.

[Ex. Will.

Ang. He's gone, and in this Ague of my Soul The shivering Fit returns; Oh with what willing Haste he took his leave, As if the long'd-for Minute were arriv'd, Of some bles'd Affignation. In vain I have confulted all my Charms, In vain this Beauty priz'd, in vain believ'd My Eyes cou'd kindle any lafting Fires. I had forgot my Name, my Infamy, And the Reproach that Honour lays on those That dare pretend a fober Paffion here. Nice Reputation, tho' it leaves behind More Virtues than inhabit where that dwells, Yet that once gone, those Virtues shine no more. Then fince I am not fit to be belov'd, I am refolv'd to think on a Revenge On him that footh'd me thus to my undoing.

SCENE III. A Street.

Enter Florinda amd Valeria in Habits different from what they have been seen in.

Flor. We're happily escap'd, yet I tremble still.

Val. A Lover and fear! Why I am but half a one, and yet I have Courage for any Attempt. Would Hellena were here. I wou'd fain have had her as deep in this Mif-chief as we, she'll fare but ill else I doubt.

Flor.

Flor. She pretended a Visit to the Augustine Nuns, but I believe some other Design carried her out, pray Heaven we light on her.

Prithee what didft do with Callis?

Val. When I saw no Reason wou'd do good on her, I sollow'd her into the Wardrobe, and as she was looking for something in a great Chest, I tumbled her in by the Heels, snatch'd the Key of the Apartment where you were confin'd, lock'd her in, and lest her bauling for Help.

Flor. 'Tis well, you resolve to follow my Fortunes, for thou darest never appear at home again after such an

Fhor.

Wal. That's according as the young Stranger and I shall agree—But to our Business—I deliver'd your Letter, your Note to Belvile, when I got out under Pretence of going to Mass, I found him at his Lodging, and believe me it came seasonably; for never was Man in so desparate a Condition. I told him of your Resolution of making your Escape To-day, if your Brother would be absent long enough to permit you; if not, die rather than be Antonio's.

Flor. Thou shou'dst have told him I was confin'd to my Chamber upon my Brother's Suspicion, that the Business on the Mole was a Plot laid between him and I.

Val. I faid all this, and told him your Brother was now gone to his Devotion, and he resolves to visit every Church 'till he finds him; and not only undeceive him in that, but cares him so as shall delay his return home.

Flor. Oh Heavens! he's here, and Belvile with him too.

[They put on their Vixards.

Enter Don Pedro, Belvile, Willmore; Belvile and Don Pedro feeming in ferious Discourse.

Val. Walk boldly by them, I'll come at a Distance, lest he suspect us.

[She walks by them, and looks back on them,

Will. Ha! Woman! and of an excellent Mien!

Ped. She throws a kind Look back on you.

Will. Death, 'tis a likely Wench, and that kind Look shall not be cast away——I'll follow her.

Rew.

Belv. Prithee do not.

Will. Do not! By Heavens to the Antipodes with such an Invitation. [She goes out, and Will. follows ber.

Belv. 'Tis a mad Fellow for a Wench.

Enter Fred.

Fred. Oh Colonel, fuch News!

Belv. Prithee what?

Fred. News that will make you laugh in spite of For-Belv. What, Blunt has had some damn'd Trick put upon him, cheated, bang'd, or clapp'd?

Fred. Cheated, Sir, rarely cheated of all but his Shirt and Drawers; the unconscionable Whore too turn'd him out before Consummation, so that traversing the Streets at Midnight, the Watch sound him in this Fresco, and conducted him Home: By Heaven 'tis such a Sight, and yet I durst as well have been hang'd as laugh at him, or pity him; he beats all that do but ask him a Question, and is in such a Humour—

Ped. Who is't has met with this ill Usage, Sir?

Belv. A Friend of ours, whom you must see for Mirth's Sake. I'll employ him to give Florinda Time for an escape.

Ped. What is he?

Belv. A young Countryman of ours, one that has been educated at so plentiful a Rate, he yet ne'er knew the want of Money, and 'twill be a great Jest to see how simply he'll look without it. For my Part I'll lend him none, and the Rogue knows not how to put on a borrowing Face, and ask first. I'll let him see how good 'tis to play our Parts whilst I play his—Prithee Fred. do you go Home and keep him in that Posture 'till we come.

[Exeunt. Enter Florinda from the farther End of the Scene, looking behind her.

Flor. I am follow'd still——hah——my Brother too advancing this Way, good Heavens defend me from being feen by him.

[She goes off.

Enter Willmore, and after bim Valeria, at a little Distance.

Will. Ah! there she fails, she looks back as she were willing willing to be boarded, I'll warrant her Prize.

[He goes out, Valeria following.

Enter Hellena, just as be goes out, with a Page.

Hell. Hah, is not that my Captain that has a Woman in chase?—'tis not Angelica. Boy, follow those People at a Distance, and bring me an Account where they go in ——I'll find his Haunts, and plague him every where.

Ha——my Brother!

[Exit Page.

[Belv. Will. Ped. cross the Stage: Hell. runs off.

Scene changes to another Street. Enter Florinda.

Flor. What shall I do? My Brother now pursues me.

Will no kind Power protect me from his Tyranny?

Hah, here's a Door open, I'll venture in, fince nothing can be worse than to fall into his Hands, my Life and Honour are at stake, and my Necessity has no choice.

[She goes in.

Enter Valeria, and Hellena's Page peeping after Florinda.

Page. Here she went in, I shall remember this House.

[Exit Boy.

Val. This is Belvile's Lodgings; she's gone in as readily as if she knew it hah here's that mad Fellow again, I dare not venture in I'll watch my Opportunity.

[Goes aside.]

Enter Willmore, gazing about bim.

Will. I have lost her hereabouts——Pox on't she must not escape me so.

Scene changes to Blune's Chamber, discovers him sitting on a Couch in his Shirt and Drawers, reading.

Blunt. So, now my Mind's a little at Peace, fince I have refolv'd Revenge—A Pox on this Taylor tho', for not bringing Home the Clothes I bespoke; and a Pox of all poor Cavaliers, a Man can never keep a spare Suit for 'em; and I shall have these Rogues come in and find me naked, and then I'm undone; but I am resolv'd to arm myself——the Rascals shall not insult over me too much.

Puts on an old rufty Sword and Belt.

Now, how like a Morrice-Dancer I am equipp'd—a fine Lady-like Whore to cheat me thus, without affording me a Kindness for my Money, a Pox light on her, I shall never be reconciled to the Sex more; she has made me as faithless

faithless as a Physician, as uncharitable as a Churchman, and as ill-natur'd as a Poet. O how I'll use all Womenkind hereafter! what wou'd I give to have one of 'em within my Reach now! any mortal Thing in Petticoats, kind Fortune, send me; and I'll forgive thy last Night's Malice—Here's a cursed Book too, (a Warning to all young Travellers) that can instruct me how to prevent such Mischiess now 'tis too late. Well, 'tis a rare convenient Thing to read a little now and then, as well as hawk and hunt.

[Sits down again and reads.

Enter to bim Florinda.

Blunt. Hah—what's here? Are my Wishes granted? and is not that a she Creature? 'Sheartlikins' tis! what wretched Thing art thou-hah?

Flor. Charitable Sir, you've told yourself already what I am; a very wretched Maid, forc'd by a strange unlucky Accident to seek a Sasety here, and must be ruin'd if you do not grant it.

Sanctuary

Blunt. Ruin'd! Is there any Ruin so inevitable as that which now threatens thee? Dost thou know, miserable Woman, into what Den of Mischief thou art fall'n? what a Bliss of Confusion?——hah——dost not see something in my Looks that frights thy guilty Soul, and makes thee wish to change that Shape of Woman for any humble Animal, or Devil? for those were safer for thee and less mischievous.

Flor. Alas, what mean you, Sir? I must confess your Looks have something in 'em makes me sear; but I beseech you, as you seem a Gentleman, pity a harmless Virgin, that takes your House for Sanctuary.

Blunt. Talk on, talk on, and weep too, 'till my Faith return. Do, flatter me out of my Senses again—a harmless Virgin with a Pox, as much one as t'other, 'Sheartlikins. Why, what the Devil can I not be safe in my House for you? not in my Chamber? nay, even being naked too cannot secure me. This is an Impudence greater than has invaded me yet.—Come, no Resistance.

[Pulls ber rudely.]

Flor. Dare you be so cruel?

Blunt. Cruel, 'Sheartlikins as a Galley-slave, or a Spanish Whore: Cruel, yes, I will kis and beat thee all over; kis and see thee all over; thou shalt lie with me too, not that I care for the Enjoyment, but to let you see I have ta'en deliberate Malice to thee, and will be reveng'd on one Whore for the Sins of another; I will smile and deceive thee, flatter thee, and beat thee, kis and swear, and lye to thee, embrace thee and rob thee, as she did me, sawn on thee, and strip thee stark naked, then hang thee out at my Window by the Heels, with a Paper of scurvy Verses sasten'd to thy Breast, in praise of damnable Women—Come, come along.

Flor. Alas, Sir, must I be facrificed for the Crimes of the most Infamous of my Sex? I never understood the Sins you name.

Blunt. Do, perswade the Fool you love him, or that one of you can be just or honest; tell me I was not an easy Coxcomb, or any strange impossible Tale; it will be believ'd sooner than thy salse Showers or Protestations. A Generation of damn'd Hypocrites, to flatter my very Clothes from my Back! dissembling Witches! are these the Returns you make an honest Gentleman that trusts, believes, and loves you!——But if I be not even with you——Come along, or I shall——— [Pulls ber again.

Enter Frederick.

Fred. Ha, what's here to do?

Blunt. 'Sheartlikins, Fred. I am glad thou art come, to be a Witness of my dire Revenge.

Fred. What's this a Person of Quality too, who is upon the Ramble to supply the Defects of some grave impotent Husband?

Blunt. No, this has another Pretence, some very unfortunate Accident brought her hither, to save a Life pursued by I know not who, or why, and forc'd to take

Sanctuary

Sanctuary here at Fool's Haven. 'Sheartlikins, to me of all Mankind for Protection? Is the As to be cajol'd again think ye? No, young One, no Prayers or Tears shall mitigate my Rage; therefore prepare for both my Pleasure of Enjoyment and Revenge, for I am resolv'd to make up my Loss here on thy Body, I'll take it out in Kindness and in Beating.

Fred. Now Mistress of mine, what do you think of this? Flor. I think he will not—dares not be so barbarous.

Fred. Have a Care, Blunt, she fetch'd a deep Sigh, she is enamour'd with thy Shirt and Drawers, she'll strip thee even of that. There are of her Calling such unconscionable Baggages, and such dextrous Thieves, they'll slea a Man, and he shall ne'er miss his Skin'till he feels the Cold. There was a Country-man of ours robb'd of a Row of Teeth whilst he was sleeping, which the Jilt made him buy again when he awak'd—You see, Lady, how little Reason we have to trust you.

Blunt. 'Sheartlikins, why, this is most abominable.

Flor. Some such Devils there may be, but by all that's Holy I am none such, I entered here to save a Life in danger.

Blunt. For no goodness I'll warrant her.

Fred. Faith, Damsel, you had e'en consess the plain Truth, for we are Fellows not to be caught twice in the same Trap: Look on the Wreck, a tight Vessel when he set out of Haven, well trimm'd and laden, and see how a Female Piccaroon of this Island of Rogues has shatter'd him, and canst thou hope for any Mercy?

Blunt. No, no, Gentlewoman, come along, 'Sheart-likins we must be better acquainted—we'll both lie with her, and then let me alone to bang her.

Fred. I am ready to serve you in Matters of Revenge, that has a double Pleasure in't.

Blunt. Well said. You hear, little One, how you are condemn'd by publick Vote to the Bed within, there's no resisting your Destiny, Sweetheart. [Pulls ber.

Flor. Stay, Sir, I have seen you with Belvile, an English Cavalier, for his Sake use me kindly; you know how, Sir.

Blunt. Belvile! why, yes, Sweeting, we do know Belvile, and wish he were with us now; he's a Cormorant at Whore and Bacon, he'd have a Limb or two of thee, my Virgin Pullet; but 'tis no matter, we'll leave him the Bones to pick.

Flor. Sir, if you you have any Esteem for that Behoile, I conjure you to treat me with more Gentleness; he'll thank you for the Justice.

Fred. Hark ye, Blunt, I doubt we are mistaken in this Matter.

Flor. Sir, if you find me not worth Belvile's Care, use me as you please; and that you may think I merit better Treatment than you threaten—pray take this Present—[Gives bim a Ring: He looks on it.

Blunt. Hum—A Diamond! why, 'tis a wonderful Virtue now that lies in this Ring, a mollifying Virtue; 'Sheart-likins there's more persuasive Rhetorick in't than all her Sex can utter.

Fred. I begin to suspect something; and 'twou'd anger us vilely to be truss'd up for a Rape upon a Maid of Quality, when we only believe we ruffle a Harlot.

Blunt. Thou art a credulous Fellow, but 'Sheartlikins I have no Faith yet; why, my Saint prattled as parloufly as this does, she gave me a Bracelet too, a Devil on her; but I sent my Man to sell it To-day for Necessaries, and it prov'd as counterfeit as her Vows of Love.

Fred. However, let it reprieve her till we see Belvile.

Blunt. That's hard, yet I will grant it.

Enter a Servant.

Serv. Oh, Sir, the Colonel is just come with his new Friend and a Spaniard of Quality, and talks of having you to Dinner with 'em.

Blunt. 'Sheartlikins, I'm undone—I would not see 'em for the World: Hark ye, Fred. lock up the Wench in your Chamber.

Fred. Fear nothing, Madam, whatever he threatens, you're fafe whilst in my Hands. [Ex. Fred. and Flor.

Blunt. And Sirrah—upon your Life, fay—I am not at Home—or that I am Asleep—or—or any Thing—away—I'll prevent their coming this Way. [Locks the Door and Ex.

ACT

ELECTED ESTATE

ACT V. SCENE I.

Blunt's Room.

After a great knocking at his Chamber-door, enter Blunt foftly, crossing the Stage in his Shirt and Drawers, as before.

ED, Ned Blunt, Ned Blunt. [Call within. Blunt. The Rogues are up in Arms, 'Sheartlikins, this villaneus Frederick has betray'd me, they have heard of my blessed Fortune.

Ned Blunt, Ned, Ned-

And knocking within.

Belv. Why, he's dead, Sir, without dispute dead, he has not been seen To-day; let's break open the Doorhere—Boy——

Blunt. Ha, break open the Door! 'Sheartlikins that mad Fellow will be as good as his Word.

Belv. Boy, bring fomething to force the Door.

A great Noise within at the Door again.

Blunt. So, now must I speak in my own Defence, I'll try what Rhetorick will do—hold—hold, what do you mean?

Belv. Oh Rogue, art alive? Prithee open the Door, and convince us.

Blunt. Yes, I am alive, Gentlemen—but at present a little busy.

Belv. How! Blunt grown a Man of Business! Come, come, open, and let's see this Miracle. [Within.

Blunt. No, no, no, no, Gentlemen, 'tis no great Bufiness—but—I am—at—my Devotion,— 'Sheartlikins, will you not allow a Man time to pray?

Belv.

Belv. Turn'd religious! A greater Wonder than the first, therefore open quickly, or we shall unhinge, we shall.

[Within.

Blunt. This won't do——Why, hark ye, Colonel; to tell you the plain Truth, I am about a necessary Affair of Life——I have a Wench with me——you apprehend me. The Devil's in't if they be so uncivil as to disturb me now.

Will. How, a Wench! Nay, then we must enter and partake; no Resistance,—unless it be your Lady of Quality, and then we'll keep our distance.

Blunt. So, the Business is out.

will. Come, come, lend more Hands to the Door,—now heave altogether—fo, well done, my Boys—

Break open the Door.

Enter Belvile, Willmore, Fred. and Pedro: Blunt looks fimply, they all laugh at him, he lays his Hand on his Several and comes up to Willmore Sword, and comes up to Willmore.

Blunt. Hark ye, Sir, laugh out your Laugh quickly, d'ye hear, and be gone, I shall spoil your Sport else; 'Sheartlikins, Sir, I shall—the Jest has been carried on too long,—a Plague upon my Taylor—

[Aside.

Will. 'Sdeath, how the Whore has dress'd him! Faith,

Sir, I'm forry.

Blunt. Are you so, Sir? Keep't to yourself then, Sir, I advise you, d'ye hear? For I can as little endure your Pity as his Mirth.

[Lays bis Hand on's Sword.

Belv. Indeed, Willmore, thou wert a little too rough with Ned Blunt's Mistress; call a Person of Quality Whore, and one so young, so handsome, and so eloquent!—Ha, ha, ha.

Blunt. Hark ye, Sir, you know me, and know I can be angry; have a Care—for 'Sheartlikins I can fight too—I can Sir,—do you mark me—no more.

Belv. Why so peevish, good Ned? Some Disappointments, I'll warrant—What! Did the jealous Count her Husband return just in the nick?

Blunt. Or the Devil, Sir,—d'ye laugh? [They laugh.] Look ye, fettle me a good fober Countenance, and that quickly too, or you shall know Ned Blunt is not—

Belv. Not every Body, we know that. Blunt. Not an Ass to be laugh'd at, Sir.

Belv. Unconscionable Sinner, to bring a Lover so near his Happiness, a vigorous passionate Lover, and then not only cheat him of his Moveables, but his Desires too.

Belv. Ah, Sir, a Mistress is a Trisle with Blunt, he'll have a dozen the next time he looks abroad, his Eyes have Charms not to be resisted: There needs no more than to expose that taking Person to the view of the Fair, and he leads'em all in Triumph.

Ped. Sir, tho' I'm a Sranger to you, I'm asham'd at the rudeness of my Nation; and could you learn who did it, would affift you to make an Example of 'em.

Blunt. Why, ay, there's one speaks sense now, and handsomely; and let me tell you, Gentlemen, I should not have shew'd myself a Jack-Pudding, thus to have made you Mirth, but that I have Revenge within my Power; for know, I have got into my possession a Female, who had better have fallen under any Curse, than the Ruin I design her: 'Sheartlikins, she assaulted me here in my own Lodgings, and had doubtless committed a Rape upon me, had not this Sword desended me.

Fred. I know not that, but o' my Conscience thou hadst ravish'd her, had she not redeem'd herself with a Ring—let's see't Blunt.

[Blunt shews the Ring.

Belv. Hah!——the Ring I gave Florinda when we exchang'd our Vows!——hark ye Blunt—— [Goes to whisper to him.

Will. No whispering, good Colonel, there's a Woman in the case, no whispering.

Bet. Hark ye, Fool, be advis'd, and conceal both the Ring and the Story, for your Reputation's fake; don't let People know what despis'd Cullies we English are: To be cheated and abus'd by one Whore, and another rather bribe thee than be kind to thee, is an Infamy to our Nation.

Will. Come, come, where's the Wench? we'll fee her, let her be what she will, we'll fee her.

Ped. Ay, ay, let us see her, I can soon discover whether she be of Quality, or for your Diversion.

D 5

Blunt.

Blunt. She's in Fred's Custody. Will. Come, come, the Key.

Belv. Death! What shall I do?——Stay, Gentlemen,——yet if I hinder 'em, I shall discover all——hold, let's go one at once——give me the Key.

Will. Nay, hold there, Colonel, I'll go first.

Fred. Nay, no Dispute, Ned and I have the Property of her.

Will. Damn Property—then we'll draw Cuts.

Nay, no Corruption, good Colonel: Come, the longest Sword carries her

[They all draw, forgetting Don Pedro being a Spaniard, had the longest.

Blunt. I yield up my Interest to you, Gentlemen, and that will be Revenge sufficient.

Will. The Wench is yours [To Ped.] Pox of his Toledo, I had forgot that.

Fred. Come, Sir, I'll conduct you to the Lady.

[Ex. Fred. and Ped. Belv. To hinder him will certainly discover—[Afide] Dost know, dull Beast, what Mischief thou hast done?

[Will. walking up and down out of Humour. Will. Ay, ay, to trust our Fortune to Lots, a Devil on't,

'twas madness, that's the Truth on't.

Belv. Oh intolerable Sot!

Enter Florinda, running masqued, Pedro after ber, Willmore gazing round ber.

Flor. Good Heaven, defend me from discovery. [Aside. Ped. 'Tis but in vain to fly me, you are fallen to my Lot.

Belv. Sure she is undiscover'd yet, but now I fear there is no way to bring her off.

Will. Why, what a Pox is not this my Woman, the fame I follow'd but now?

[Ped. talking to Florinda, who walks up and down. Ped. As if I did not know ye, and your Business here. Flor. Good Heaven! I fear he does indeed— [Aside.

Ped. Come, pray be kind, I know you meant to be fo when you enter'd here, for these are proper Gentlemen.

Will. But, Sir—perhaps the Lady will not be impos'd upon, she'll choose her Man.

Ped. I am better bred, than not to leave her Choice

Enter Valeria, and is surprized at the Sight of Don Pedro.

Val. Don Pedro here! There's no avoiding him. [Afide.

Flor. Valeria! Then I'm undone [Afide.

Val. Oh! Have I found you, Sir-

[To Pedro, running to him.

The strangest Accident—if I had breath—to tell it.

Ped. Speak is Florinda fafe? Hellena well?

Val. Ay, ay, Sir—Florinda—is fafe from any Fears of you.

Ped. Why, where's Florinda? ____fpeak.

Val. Ay, where indeed, Sir? I wish I could inform you.

Flor. Oh, what will she say?

[Afide.

Val. She's fled away in the Habit of one of her Pages, Sir—but Callis thinks you may retrieve her yet, if you make hafte away; she'll tell you, Sir, the rest,——if you can find her out.

[Aside.

Ped. Dishonourable Girl, she has undone my Aim—Sir—you see my necessity of leaving you, and I hope you'll pardon it: My Sister, I know, will make her Flight to you; and if she do, I shall expect she should be render'd back.

Belv. I shall consult my Love and Honour, Sir.

[Ex. Ped.

Flor. My dear Preserver, let me embrace thee.

[To Val.

Will. What the Devil's all this?
Blunt. Mystery by this Light.

Val. Come, come, make hafte and get yourfelves married quickly, for your Brother will return again.

Belv. I am fo surprized with Fears and Joys, so amazed to find you here in safety, I can scarce persuade my Heart into a Faith of what I see

Will. Hark ye, Colonel, is this that Mistress who has cost you so many Sighs, and me so many Quarrels with you?

Belv. It is—Pray give him the Honour of your Hand.

Will. Thus it must be receiv'd then.

[Kneels and kisses ber Hand.

And with it give your Pardon too.

Flor. The Friend to Belvile may command me any Thing.

Will. Death, wou'd I might, 'tis a furprizing Beauty.

[Afide.

Belv. Boy, run and fetch a Father instantly. [Ex. Boy. Fred. So, now do I stand like a Dog, and have not a Syllable to plead my own Cause with: By this Hand, Madam, I was never thoroughly confounded before, nor shall I ever more dare look up with Considence, 'till you are pleased to pardon me.

Flor. Sir, I'll be reconcil'd to you on one Condition, that you'll follow the Example of your Friend, in marrying a Maid that does not hate you, and whose Fortune (I believe) will not be unwelcome to you.

Fred. Madam, had I no Inclination that way, I shou'd obey your kind Commands.

Belv. Who, Fred. marry? He has so few Inclinations for Womankind, that had he been possess'd of Paradise, he might have continu'd there to this Day, if no Crime but Love cou'd have disinherited him.

Fred. Oh, I do not use to boast of my Intrigues.

Belv. Boast! Why thou do'it nothing but boast; and I dare swear, wer't thou as innocent from the Sin of the Grape, as thou art from the Apple, thou might'st yet claim that Right in Eden which our first Parents lost by too much loving.

Fred. I wish this Lady would think me so modest a Man.

Val. She shou'd be forry then, and not like you half so well, and I shou'd be loth to break my Word with you; which was, That if your Friend and mine are agreed, it shou'd be a Match between you and I.

[She gives bim her Hand. Fred.

Fred. Bear Witness, Colonel, 'tisa Bargain.

[Kisses ber Hand.

Blunt. I have a Pardon to beg too; but 'Sheartlikins I am so out of Countenance, that I am a Dog if I can say any Thing to the Purpose. [To Florinda.

Flor. Sir, I heartily forgive you all.

Blunt. That's nobly faid, fweet Lady——Belvile, prithee present her her Ring again, for I find I have not Courage to approach her myself.

[Gives bim the Ring, be gives it to Florinda.

Enter Boy.

Boy. Sir, I have brought the Father that you fent for.

Belv. 'Tis well, and now my dear Florinda, let's fly to compleat that mighty Joy we have so long wish'd and figh'd for———————————————Come, Fred. you'll follow.

Fred. Your Example Sir, 'twas ever my Ambition in War, and must be so in Love.

Will. And must not I see this juggling Knot ty'd?

Belv. No, thou shalt do us better Service, and be our Guard, lest Don Pedro's sudden Return interrupt the Ceremony.

Will. Content; I'll secure this Pass.

[Ex. Belv. Flor. Fred. and Val.

Enter Boy.

Boy. Sir, there's a Lady without wou'd speak to you.

Will. Conduct her in, I dare not quit my Pott.

Boy. And, Sir, your Taylor waits you in your Chamber.

Rlunt. Some Comfort yet, I shall not dance naked at the Wedding.

[Ex. Blunt and Boy.

Enter again the Boy, conducting in Angelica in a masquing

Will. This can be none but my pretty Gipfy—Oh, I fee you can follow as well as fly—Come, confess thy-felf the most malicious Devil in Nature, you think you have done my Bus'ness with Angelica—

Ang. Stand off, base Villain.

[She draws a Pistol and holds to his Breast.

Will. Hah, 'tis not she: Who art thou? And what's thy Business?

Ang.

Ang. One thou hast injur'd, and who comes to kill thee for't.

Will. What the Devil canst thou mean?

Will. Prithee on what Acquaintance? For I know thee not.

Ang. Behold this Face!—So loft to thy Remembrance! And then call all thy Sins about thy Soul.

[Pulls off ber Vizard.

And let them die with thee.

Will. Angelica!
Ang. Yes, Traytor.

Does not thy guilty Blood run shivering thro' thy Veins? Hast thou no Horror at this Sight, that tells thee, Thou hast not long to boast thy shameful Conquest?

Will. Faith, no Child, my Blood keeps it's old Ebbs and Flows still, and that usual Heat too, that cou'd oblige thee with a Kindness, had I but Opportunity.

Ang. Devil! Doft wanton with my Pain-Have at thy Heart.

Will. Hold, dear Virago! Hold thy Hand a little.

I am not now at Leisure to be kill'd—Hold and hearme—
Death, I think she's in Earnest.

[Aside.

Ang. Oh if I take not heed,

My coward Heart will leave me to his Mercy.

[Afide, turning from bim.
—What have you, Sir, to fay?—But should I hear thee,
Thoud'st talk away all that's brave about me:

[Follows bim with the Piftol to bis Breaft.

And I have vow'd thy Death, by all that's facred.

Will. Why, then there's an End of a proper handsome Fellow, that might have liv'd to have done good Service yet——That's all I can say to't.

Ang. Yet -I wou'd give thee-Time for Penitence.

[Paufingly.

Will. Faith, Child, I thank God, I have ever took Care to lead a good, fober, hopeful Life, and am of a Religion that teaches me to believe, I shall depart in Peace.

Ang.

Ang. So will the Devil: Tell me
How many poor believing Fools thou hast undone;
How many Hearts thou hast betray'd to Ruin!
——Yet these are little Mischiess to the Ills

Thou'ft taught mine to commit: Thou'ft taught it Love.

Will. Egad'twas shreudly hurt the while.

Ang. —Love, that has robb'd it of it's Unconcern, Of all that Pride that taught me how to value it, And in it's room a mean submissive Passion was convey'd, That made me humbly bow, which I ne'er did To any Thing but Heaven.

—Thou, perjur'd Man, didst this, and with thy Oaths, Which on thy Knees thou didst devoutly make, Sosten'd my yielding Heart—And then, I was a Slave—Yet still had been content to've worn my Chains, Worn 'em with Vanity and Joy for ever, Hadst thou not broke those Vows that put them on.

_____'Twas then I was undone.

[All this while follows him with a Pistol to his Breast.

Will. Broke my Vows! Why where hast thou lived? Amongst the Gods! For I never heard of mortal Man, That has not broke a thousand Vows.

Ang. Oh, Impudence!

Will. Angelica! That Beauty has been too long tempting, Not to have made a thousand Lovers languish, Who in the amorous Favour, no doubt have fwom Like me; did they all die in that Faith? Still adoring? I do not think they did.

Ang. No, faithless Man; had I repaid their Vows, as I did thine, I would have kill'd the Ungrateful that had abandon'd me.

Will. This old General has quite spoil'd thee, nothing makes a Woman so vain, as being statter'd; your old Lovers ever supplies the Defects of Age, with intolerable Dotage, vast Charge, and that which you call Constancy; and attributing all this to your own Merits, you domineer, and throw your Favours in's Teeth, upbraiding him still with the Defects of Age, and cuckold him as often as he deceives your Expectations. But the gay, young, brisk Lover,

Lover that brings his equal Fire, and can give you Dart for Dart, he'll be as nice as you fometimes.

Ang. All this thou'st made me know, for which I hate Had I remain'd in innocent Security, (thee. I shou'd have thought all Men were born my Slaves;

And worn my Pow'r like Lightning in my Eyes, To have destroy'd at Pleasure when offended.

—But when Love held the Mirror, the undeceiving Glass Reflected all the Weakness of my Soul, and made me know, My richest Treasure being lost, my Honour, All the remaining Spoil cou'd not be worth

The Conqueror's Care or Value.

---Oh how I fell like a long worshipp'd Idol,

Discovering all the Cheat!

Wou'd not the Incense and rich Sacrifice, Which blind Devotion offer'd at my Altars,

Have fall'n to thee?

Why wou'dst thou then destroy my fansy'd Pow'r?

Will. By Heav'n thou'rt brave, and I admire thee I wish I were that dull, that constant Thing (strangely. Which thou wou'dst have, and Nature never meant me:

I must, like chearful Birds, sing in all Groves,

And perch on every Bough,

Billing the next kind She that flies to meet me;
Yet after all cou'd build my Nest with thee,
Thither repairing when I'd lov'd my Round,
And fill reserve a tributary Flame

And still reserve a tributary Flame.

To gain your Credit, I'll pay you back your Charity, And be oblig'd for nothing but for Love.

[Offers ber a Purse of Gold.

Ang. Oh that thou were in earnest!

So mean a Thought of me, Wou'd turn my Rage to Scorn, and I shou'd pity thee,

And give thee Leave to live;

Which for the publick Safety of our Sex,

And my own private Injuries, I dare not do.

Prepare [Follows still as before.

I will no more be tempted with Replies.

Will. Sure

Ang. Another Word will damn thee! I've heard thee talk too long.

[She follows bim with a Pistol ready to shoot: He retires fill amaz'd.

Enter Don Antonio, bis Arm in a Scarf, and lays hold on the Piftol.

Ant. Ha! Angelica!

Ang. Antonio! What the Devil brought thee hither?

Ant. Love and Curiofity, feeing your Coach at the Door. Let me disarm you of this unbecoming Instrument of Death-Takes away the Piftol. Amongst the Number of your Slaves, was there not one worthy the Honour to have fought your Quarrel? -Who are you, Sir, that are so very wretched

To merit Death from her?

Will. One, Sir, that cou'd have made a better End of an amorous Quarrel without you, than with you.

Ant. Sure 'tis fome Rival—hah—the very Man that took down her Picture Yesterday—the very same that set on me last Night-Blest Opportunity-[Offers to shoot him.

Ang. Hold, you're mistaken, Sir. Ant. By Heaven the very fame!

Sir, what Pretensions have you to this Lady?

Will. Sir, I don't us'd to be examin'd, and am ill at all Disputes but this— Draws, Anton. offers to shoot. Ang. Oh, hold! You see he's arm'd with certain Death: To Will.

And you, Antonio, I command you hold, By all the Paffion you have so lately vow'd me.

Enter Don Pedro, Sees Antonio, and stays.

Ped. Hah, Antonio! and Angelica!

[Afide. Ant. When I refuse Obedience to your Will.

May you destroy me with your mortal Hate.

By all that's Holy I adore you fo,

That e'en my Rival, who has Charms enough To make him fall a Victim to my Jealoufy, Shall live, nay, and have leave to love on still.

Afide. Ped. What's this I hear? Ang. Ah thus, 'twas thus he talk'd, and I believ'd.

[Pointing to Will. -Antonio, I'd not have fold my Interest in his Heart,
For all the Sword has won and lost in Battle.

But now to shew my utmost of Contempt,
I give thee Life—which if thou would'st preserve,
Live where my Eyes may never see thee more,
Live to undo some one, whose Soul may prove
So bravely constant to revenge my Love.

[Goes out, Ant. follows, but Ped. pulls bim back.

Ped. Antonio flay.

Ped. What Coward Fear was that prevented thee
From meeting me this Morning on the Mole?

Ant. Meet thee?

Ped. Yes me; I was the Man that dar'd thee to't.

Ant. Hast thou so often seen me fight in War,
To find no better Cause to excuse my Absence?

I sent my Sword and one to do thee Right,

Finding myself uncapable to use a Sword.

Fred. But 'twas Florinda's Quarrel that we fought, And you to shew how little you esteem'd her, Sent me your Rival, giving him your Interest.

But I have found the Cause of this Affront, And when I meet you sit for the Dispute,

- I'll tell you my Resentment.

Ant. I shall be ready, Sir, ere long to do you Reason.

[Exit. Ant.

Ped. If I cou'd find Florinda, now whilst my Anger's high, I think I shou'd be kind, and give her to Belvile in Revenge.

Will. Faith, Sir, I know not what you wou'd do, but I believe the Priest within has been so kind.

Ped. How! my Sifter married?

Will. I hope by this Time she is, and bedded too, or he has not my Longings about him.

Ped. Dares he do thus? Does he not fear my Pow'r?

Will. Faith not at all. If you will go in, and thank him for the Favour he has done your Sister, so; if not, Sir, my Power's greater in this House than yours; I have a damn'd surly Crew here, that will keep you 'till the next Tide, Tide, and then clap you on board my Prize; my Ship lies but a League off the Mole, and we shall show your Donship a damn'd Tramontana Rover's Trick.

s. half I ama a cua ! . Enter Belvile: ama da con viine I set Belv. This Rogue's in some new Mischief Hah, Pe-

Ped. Colonel Belvile, I hear you have married my Sister.

Belv. You have heard Truth then, Sir.

Ped. Have I fo? Then, Sir, I wish you Joy.

Belv. How!

Ped. By this Embrace I do, and am glad on't.

Belv. Are you in earnest?

Ped. By our long Friendship and my Obligations to thee, I am. The sudden Change I'll give you Reasons for anon. Come lead me to my Sister, that she may know I now approve her Choice. [Exit. Belv. with Ped.

[Will. goes to follow them. Enter Hellena as before in Boy's Clothes, and pulls him back.

Will. Ha! my Gipfy—Now a thousand Blessings on thee for this Kindness. Egad, Child, I was e'en in Despair of ever seeing thee again; my Friends are all provided for within, each Man his kind Woman.

Hell. Ha! I thought they had ferv'd me some such Trick.

Will. And I was e'en refolv'd to go aboard, condemn myself to lone Cabin, and the Thoughts of thee.

Hell. And cou'd you have left me behind? Wou'd you have been fo I'll-natur'd?

Will. Why, 'twould have broke my Heart Childbut fince we are met again, I defy foul Weather to part us.

Hell. And wou'd you be a faithful Friend now, if a Maid shou'd trust you.

Will. For a Friend I cannot promise, thou art of a Form so excellent, a Face and Humour too good for cold dull Friendship; I am parlously assaid of being in Love, Child, and you have not forgot how severely you have us'd me.

Hell. That's all one, such Usage you must still look for, to find out all your Haunts, to rail at you to all that love you, 'till I have made you love only me in your own Defence, because no body else will love you.

Will.

Will. But hast thou no better Quality to recommend thy-felf by?

Hell. Faith none, Captain—Why, 'twill be the greater Charity to take me for thy Mistress, I am a lone Child, a kind of Orphan Lover, and why I shou'd die a Maid, and in a Captain's Hands too, I do not understand,

Will. Egad, I was never claw'd away with Broad Sides from any Female before, thou hast one Virtue I adore, Good-Nature; I hate a coy demure Mistres, she's as troublesome as a Colt, I'll break none: No, give me a mad Mistress when mew'd, and in flying one I dare trust upon the Wing, that whilst she is kind will come to the Lure.

Hell. Nay as kind as you will, good Captain, whilst it lasts, but let's lose no Time.

Will. My Time's as precious to me, as thine can be; therefore dear Creature, fince we are so well agreed, let's retire to my Chamber, and if ever thou wert treated with such favory Love—Come—My Bed's prepar'd for such a Guest, all clean and sweet as thy fair self; I love to steal a Dish and a Bottle with a Friend, and hate long Graces—Come let's retire and fall to.

Hell. 'Tis but getting my Consent, and the Business is soon done; but let old Gasser Hymen and his Priest say Amen to't, and I dare lay my Mother's Daughter by as proper a Fellow as your Father's Son, without fear or blushing.

Will. Hold, hold, no Bugg Words, Child; Priest and Hymen! Prithee add Hangman to 'em to make up the Consort—No, no, we'll have no Vows but Love, Child, nor Witness but the Lover; the kind Deity injoins nought but Love and Enjoy. Hymen and Priest wait still upon Portion and Jointure; Love and Beauty have their own Ceremonies. Marriage is as certain a Bane to Love, as lending Money is to Friendship: I'll neither ask nor give a Vow, tho' I could be content to turn Gipsy, and become a Lest-hand Bridegroom, to have the Pleasure of working that great Miracle of making a Maid a Mother if you durst venture; 'tis upsy Gipsy that, and if I miss, I'll lose my Labour.

Hell. And I if you do not lose, what shall I get? A Cradle full of Noise and Mischief, with a Pack of Repentance at my Back? Can you teach me to weave Incle to pass my Time with? 'Tis upsy Gipsy that too.

Will. I can teach thee to weave a true Lover's Knot better.

Hell. So can my Dog.

Will. Well, I see we are both upon our Guard, and I see there's no way to conquer good Nature, but by yielding—here—give me thy Hand—one Kiss and I am thine—

Hell. One Kiss! How like my Page he speaks; I am resolv'd you shall have none, for asking such a sneaking Sum—He that will be satisfied with one Kiss, will never die of that Longing; good Friend Single-Kiss, is all your talking come to this?——A Kiss, a Caudle! farewel Captain Single-Kiss.

[Going out, he stays her.]

Kisses ber Hand.

And now let the blind Ones (Love and Fortune) do their worst.

Hell. Why, God-a-mercy, Captain!

Will. But hark ye—the Bargain is now made; but is it not fit we shou'd know each other's Names? That when we have Reason to curse one another hereaster, and People ask me who 'tis I give to the Devil, I may at least be able to tell what Family you came of.

Hell. Good reason, Captain; and where I have cause, (as I doubt not but I shall have plentiful) that I may know at whom to throw my——Blessings——I beseech ye your Name.

Will. I am call'd Robert the Constant.

Hell. A very fine Name! pray was it your Faulkner or Butler that christen'd you? Do they not use to whistle when they call you?

Will. I hope you have a better, that a Man may name without croffing himself, you are so merry with mine.

Hell. I am call'd Hellena the Inconstant,

Enter Pedro, Belvile, Florinda, Fred. Valeria.

Ped. Hah! Hellena! Den all' Million on I ven

Flor. Hellenal a sussit of soch harm mo I !

Hell. The very fame—hah my Brother! now Captain shew your Love and Courage; stand to your Arms, and defend me bravely, or I am lost for ever.

Ped. What's this I hear? false Girl, how came you hither, and what's your Business? Speak.

[Goes roughly to her.

Will. Hold off, Sir, you have leave to parly only.

Puts bimself between.

Hell. I had e'en as good tell it, as you guess it. Faith Brother, my Business is the same with all living Creatures of my Age, to love, and be loved, and here's the Man.

Ped. Perfidious Maid, hast thou deceiv'd me too, deceiv'd thyself and Heaven?

Hell. 'Tis time enough to make my Peace with that:

Be you but kind, let me alone with Heaven.

Ped. Belvile, I did not expect this false Play from you, was't not enough you'd gain'd Florinda (which I pardon'd) but your lewd Friends too must be inrich'd with the Spoils of a noble Family?

Belv. Faith Sir, I am as much surpriz'd at this as you can be: Yet, Sir, my Friends are Gentlemen, and ought to be esteem'd for their Missortunes, since they have the Glory to suffer with the best of Men and Kings; 'tis true, he's a Rover of Fortune, yet a Prince aboard his little wooden World.

Ped. What's this to the Maintenance of a Woman of her Birth and Quality?

Will. Faith, Sir, I can boast of nothing but a Sword which does me Right where-e'er I come, and has defended a worse Cause than a Woman's; and since I lov'd her before I either knew her Birth or Name, I must pursue my Resolution, and marry her.

Ped. And is all your holy Intent of becoming a Nun debauch'd into a Defire of Man?

Hell. Why——I have confider'd the Matter, Brother, and find the three hundred thousand Crowns my Uncle left me (and you cannot keep from me) will be better laid laid out in Love than in Religion, and turn to as good an Account——let most Voices carry it, for Heaven or the Captain?

All cry. A Captain, a Captain.

Hell. Look ye, Sir, 'tis a clear Case.

Ped. Oh I am mad——if I refuse, my Life's in Danger——[Aside.—Come—There's one Motive induces me—take her—I shall now be free from the Fear of her Honour; guard it you now, if you can, I have been a Slave to't long enough.

[Gives her to him.]

Will. Faith, Sir, I am of a Nation, that are of opinion a Woman's Honour is not worth guarding when she has a Mind to part with it.

Hell. Well faid Captain.

Ped. This was your Plot, Mistress, but I hope you have married one that will revenge my Quarrel to you—

[To Valeria.

Val. There's no altering Destiny, Sir.

Ped. Sooner than a Womans Will, therefore I forgive you all——and wish you may get my Father's Pardon as easily; which I fear.

Enter Blunt dress'd in a Spanish Habit, looking very ridiculously; bis Man adjusting bis Band.

Man. 'Tis very well, Sir.

Blunt. Well, Sir, 'Shearlikins I tell you 'tis damnable ill, Sir——a Spanish Habit, good Lord? Cou'd the Devil and my Taylor devise no other Punishment for me, but the Mode of a Nation I abominate?

Belv. What's the Matter, Ned?

Blunt. Pray view me round, and judge—[Turns round. Belv. I must confess thou art a kind of an odd Figure.

Blunt. In a Spanish Habit with a Vengeance! I had rather be in the Inquisition for Judaism, than in this Doublet and Breeches; a Pillory were an easy Collar to this, three Handfuls high; and these Shoes too are worse than the Stocks, with the Sole an Inch shorter than my Foot: In fine, Gentlemen, methinks I look altogether like a Bag of Bays stuff'd full of Fools Flesh.

Belv. Methinks 'tis well, and makes thee look en Ca-

Come, Sir, settle your Face, and salute our Eriends. Lady-

Blum. Hah! Say'ft thou fo, my little Rover?

Lady-(if you be one) give me leave to kis your Hand, and tell you, 'Sheartlikins, for all I look fo, I am your humble Servant—A Pox of my Spanish Habit.
Will. Hark—what's this? [Musick is heard to play.

Enter Boy.

Boy. Sir, as the Custom is, the gay People in Masquerade, who make every Man's House their own, are coming up.

Enter several Men and Women in masquing Habits, with Musick, they put themselves in order and dance.

Blunt. 'Sheartlikins, wou'd 'twere lawful to pull off' their false Faces, that I may see if my Doxy were not amongst 'em.

Belv. Ladies and Gentlemen, fince you are come for a propos, you must take a small Collation with us.

To the Masquers.

Will. Whilst we'll to the Good Man within, who stays to give us a Cast of his Office. To Hell.

-Have you no trembling at the near approach? Hell. No more than you have in an Engagement or a Tempest.

Will. Egad thou'rt a brave Girl, and I admire thy Love and Courage.

Lead on, no other Dangers they can dread, er be in the enquirement for judalin, than in this and Appendix a billow were an easy Coller to place ore out solds ober her silve

Who venture in the Storms o'th' Marriage-Bed.

[Exeunt.
